SUBMARINES GET TWO MERCHANTMEN

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, March 1.—Germany's new submarine war against British shipping, as threatened in the warning notice to the United States government, was opened on scheduled time. The Kaiser's sea offensive against the British was set to go into effect at midnight and before noon word had been received of the torpedoing of two merchantmen. They were the Thornaby, 1,782 tons, and the Malvina, 1,244 tons.

It is announced that all the members of the crew of the Thornaby were killed by the attack or drowned. The dispatch which reported the destruction of the Malvina off the Kentish coast, did not mention the fate of the crew.

The Thornaby hailed from West Hartpool and was built in 1889. She was engaged in the freight trade. The Malvina hailed from Leith. She was an old vessel, having been built in 1857. From the promptness with which the new German submarine warfare was launched in British waters it was evident that submarines had been sent out in advance with orders to begin attacks as soon as enemy ships were sighted today.

The German notice of the fresh offensive against English shipping had stated that armed merchant ships were to be attacked without notice, but there was nothing to show that the Thornaby and Malvina bore guns. News of the sinking of the ships aroused the greatest anxiety in shipping circles and insurance rates were immediately raised.

It is said that there are at least a score of German submarines in the waters around the British Isles, the line of hostile underwater craft extending all the way from the Atlantic to the North Sea.

PROSPERITY WEEK OPENS AUSPICIOUSLY

Tuesday was the first day of the Prosperity Sale held by the Progressive merchants of the city and combined with the fine weather and the bargains offered by the stores the first day of the sale proved to be a profitable one for the merchants as well as the shopper.

The clear weather caused a number of people from the country to come to town after being confined for some time by the bad weather which has prevailed for some time. Early in the morning the uptown streets were thronged with shoppers and by afternoon the number had increased until it took on the proportion of the Saturday afternoon shopping crowd.

Several of the merchants taking part in the sale reported a big day's business for the beginning of the week and hoped to see the business increase as the week advanced.

The Prosperity Sale will continue until Saturday night and each store taking part in the sale and offering bargains are displaying posters in the windows announcing the fact that they are among the progressive merchants who are taking part in the event.

Not only are the dry-goods stores and clothing stores offering bargains for the week but a number of the grocery stores and other businesses of the city are participating in the event and no matter what the needs of the housekeeper may be there are bargains to be had.

The event was first started with the idea that on February 29, the extra day which we enjoy once in every four years, was a day on which the merchants did not have to pay rent, taxes or insurance and as their expenses were very small on this day the merchants decided to share their profits with the purchaser but in order to give people who live out of town and could not get here on February 29, an opportunity to share in the savings the sale was extended for the remainder of the week in order that all may share in the big event.

Probation Officer's Report.
Probation Officer Theodore Wiedenmann's report for February shows 4 boys and 2 men who were still on probation since January and that during February 1 boy and 1 man were placed on probation, making a total still on probation of 5 boys and 3 men. One boy's probation was transferred to New York city during the month.

HOUSE TO ENDORSE PRESIDENT WILSON

Leaders After Conference at the White House Promise Prompt Action on His Request For a Vote on Resolutions.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, March 1.—"President Wilson's hands will be supported by congress. Even men who believe that a resolution should pass congress calling upon Americans to stay off armed ships during the present stage of the European war will not put themselves in position of repudiating the position assumed by President Wilson, which he says is made necessary to maintain the nation's honor. The house foreign affairs committee will prepare a resolution today endorsing the president's position. It will be reported under a special rule which will permit its immediate consideration. I am certain that such a resolution will be passed."

Following a conference at the White House which lasted more than an hour, Representative Henry Flood of Virginia, chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, made the above statement. The conference was participated in by Flood and Senators Stone and Kern. At the end of it, Speaker Clark and House Leader Ritchie were sent for on suggestion of the two senators and Flood.

They were asked by the president to aid the program and are expected to do so. It is expected that so soon as the house acts on the proposition it will be pushed through the senate. Whether action will be taken today was doubtful, Flood said, as this is calendar Wednesday under the rules and a single objection would prevent consideration of anything but local measures.

The conference today, like that of last Thursday, was sensational. President Wilson informed the leaders that the policy of the government was most seriously menaced by a belief, widely circulated abroad that the country was not behind the president. This belief was seriously hampering the diplomatic negotiations between this country and the Central European powers, the president said.

In addition, it is understood that the executive, in effect, intimated that the German ambassador and the Austrian charge have been influenced by the agitation in congress to such an extent that they have become convinced that their government could decline to meet the views of the United States.

The president explained that the slightest sign of weakness on the part of the United States at present would destroy the influence of this country abroad, rob the nation of the fruits of its many months of strict neutrality and instead of acting to keep us out of war would be almost certain to involve us.

The decision is understood to have been characterized by a solemn earnestness that emphasized just how critical the present submarine situation really is. There was not the slightest doubt in the minds of those who heard him that the president is absolutely convinced that if he is not backed up by congress at the present time the result will be very disastrous to the country.

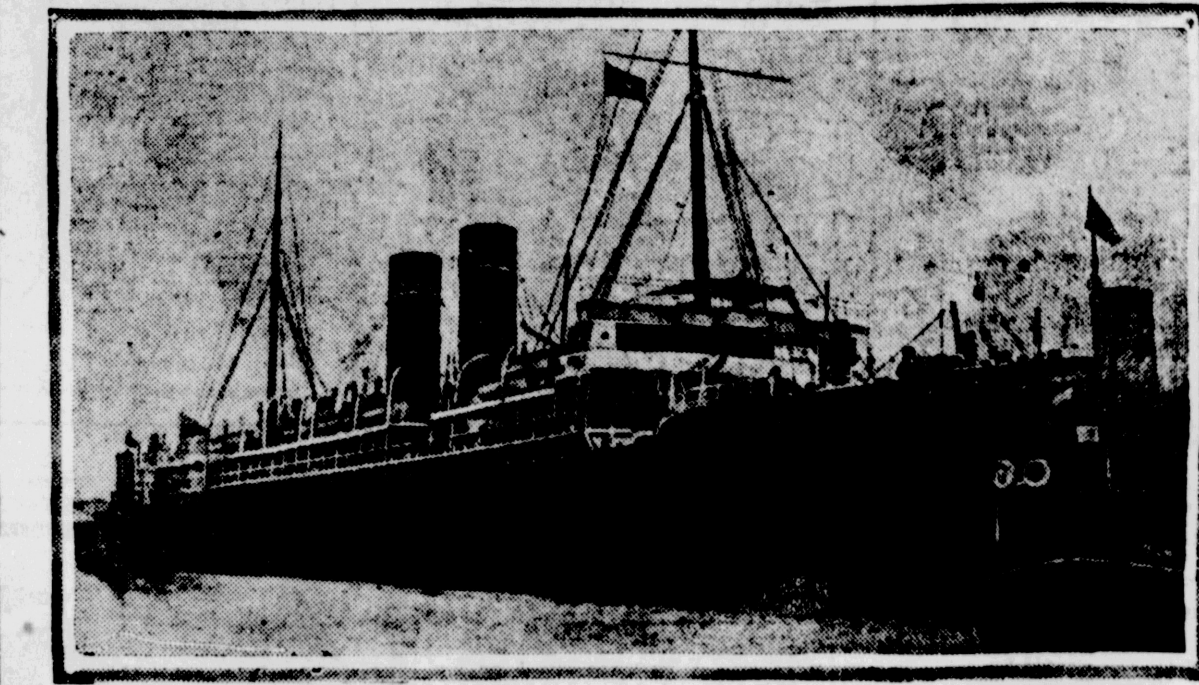

The senators explained to the president that there was no doubt that the great majority of members of the upper house were willing to permit the exhaustion of diplomatic means before taking any action at all. It is understood that they took the position that at no time have there been more than 25 votes in sight for the Gore resolution and that now, with the issue squarely raised, that number would dwindle materially if a record vote was ordered.

In consequence they suggested that the initiative should be taken in the house. The president and Representative Flood accepted this view, pointing out especially in view of the allegation that politics was playing a big part in the agitation and the speaker and the house leader immediately were telephoned for.

The speaker and Mr. Kitchen agreed with the President that action should be taken without unnecessary delay and most of their discussion was on methods of procedure. It was agreed that the resolution should be framed by the foreign affairs committee and so soon as it has been agreed on the rules committee will be notified and will draft the special rule under which action can be taken.

It also was agreed that none of the resolutions now before the House committee would be reported. Instead a new resolution that will satisfy the majority will be drawn. Following is the text of a letter which President Wilson addressed to Edward W. Pou, a member of the Committee on Rules of the House of Representatives:

THE WHITE HOUSE.
Washington, Feb. 29, 1916.
My Dear Mr. Pou:
I am much as I learn that Mr. Henry, the Chairman of the Committee on Rules, is absent in Texas. I take the liberty of calling your attention, as ranking member of the committee, to a matter of grave consequence to the country, which can, I believe, be handled under the rules of the House only by that committee. The report that there are divided counsels in Congress in regard to the foreign policy of the Government is being made industrious use of in foreign capitals. I believe that report to be false, but so long as it is anywhere credited it cannot fail to do the greatest serious risk. I therefore feel justified in asking that your committee will permit me to urge an early vote upon the resolutions with regard to travel on armed merchantmen, which have recently been so much talk about, in order that there may be afforded an immediate opportunity for full public discussion and action upon them, and that all doubts and contentions may be swept away and our foreign relations once more cleared of damaging misunderstandings. The matter is of so grave importance and lies so clearly within the field of executive initiative that I venture to hope that your committee will not think that I am talking unwarranted liberty in making this suggestion as to the business of the House, and I very earnestly commend it to their immediate consideration. Cordially and sincerely yours, WOODROW WILSON.

P. & O. LINER MALOJA

QUEEN MARIE SERVICE.

BRITISH LINER ON WHICH 151 LIVES WERE LOST.

It is now thought that the total of lives lost on the Peninsular and Oriental liner Maloja, which struck a mine and sank within half an hour, two miles off Dover, will reach 151. Of the total complement of 411 passengers and crew on the vessel only 260 are known to have been saved.

The Maloja sank two miles off Dover, in plain view of people on shore. The vessel went down in half an hour.

Half an hour after the Maloja foundered the tanker Empress of Fort William hit a mine half a mile away and went down, her crew being saved.

There have been many reports that mines were being put in the channel by specially constructed German submarines. Some of them have been laid in the Straits of Dover and some at the mouth of the Thames. A Dutch steamer recently having been damaged off North Foreland, and the Mecklenburg, a Dutch coal steamer, being sunk but with no loss of life.

cently been so much talk about, in order that there may be afforded an immediate opportunity for full public discussion and action upon them, and that all doubts and contentions may be swept away and our foreign relations once more cleared of damaging misunderstandings. The matter is of so grave importance and lies so clearly within the field of executive initiative that I venture to hope that your committee will not think that I am talking unwarranted liberty in making this suggestion as to the business of the House, and I very earnestly commend it to their immediate consideration. Cordially and sincerely yours, WOODROW WILSON.

MOTOR ICEBOAT A SLOW PROPOSITION

Astor Craft Had Try-Out On Hudson River But Gasoline Froze and Home Made Craft Was Stalled For Afternoon.

That somebody, whether practical joker or war sympathizer, has watered the gasoline in Vincent Astor's garage at Rhinecliff became known Tuesday afternoon when several employees of the Astor estate attempted to start a new motor ice flyer on the Hudson river. The motive power was a huge wood propeller stationed aft and the flyer stood on two sleds, the four runners being placed about the same as the wheels on the average wagon. It was brought down to the ice for its preliminary trial about 4:30 o'clock.

But work as hard as they might the operators were unable to get more than a few explosions from the engine although they primed it again and again, removed spark plugs and tried almost every device known to the motoring art. After an hour and a half's labor cranking the engine, the men investigated the carburetor to find the gasoline frozen. The feed pipe was also found to be stopped with ice and the flyer was then taken back to shore for a general thaw-out. Members of the National Security League and others on hand to witness the trials were much disappointed. It is expected that the iceboat will be in operation today with a better quality of gasoline. According to the men in charge of the boat, the gasoline they had contained a large proportion of water and they planned to investigate where this came from today. The boat, they said, was entirely home made except for the gasoline tank, which came from Henry Ford.

Peaches Defeat Cherries.
Tuesday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. the Peaches defeated the Cherries in a fast basketball game by a score of 23 to 12 and won the championship of the Student B basketball league. The two teams tied for first place at the close of the league and a series of three games was arranged to play off the tie and decide the championship. The Peaches by their victory Tuesday clinched the championship by winning two of the three games. The Peaches will each be presented with a silver medal for their work. The members of the winning team are Thompson, Ivory, Kirchner, Horton, Husted and Adams. The members of the Cherries are Vignos, Bruyn, Leventhal, Zeh and Smith.

This evening at 8 o'clock the employed boys will hold the first three events in the international athletic contest being held in Y. M. C. A.'s all over the world.

Elk Badly Hurt in Fall.
W. J. Hamilton, a former fire lieutenant in New York, suffered a fractured skull in a fall down a hotel stairway at Hurleyville Monday. Hamilton was brought back to Thrall Hospital, Middletown, where he now lies in a precarious condition. He had just left Middletown the previous day in attendance at a "Elks' stag" party.

FINANCIAL TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT

Big Fuss Over Five Shares of Bank Stock Pledged as Security For a Loan That Was Afterward Paid.

In connection with the indictment last week by the Delaware county grand jury of Augustus H. Todd, president of the First National Bank of Griffin Corners; John E. Scudder, a bank director, and Fred D. Cure of Pine Hill, son of U. S. Grant Cure and likewise a director of the bank, the three of whom were indicted for grand larceny in the first degree, are some interesting legal questions.

The indictments do not in any way affect the bank, but arise over the transfer of five shares of the capital stock of the bank, which were being held by Scudder as collateral security for indebtedness of Harold O. Judd, to Fred D. Cure.

Indebtedness Dates Back to 1912.

In 1912, Harold O. Judd, who is engaged in business in Griffin Corners, became indebted to John E. Scudder on two notes, one for $500 and the other for $275, to secure the payment of which he assigned to Scudder five shares of stock of the First National Bank of Griffin Corners, which he owned. Subsequently, at the request of Judd, Scudder became endorser on a note for $2,500 given by a man named Kirk, which was discounted at the bank for the benefit of Eugene E. Howe, a lawyer of Griffin Corners. To secure Scudder's signature to this $2,500 note, Judd assigned to Scudder several mortgages which he owned. One of the mortgages so held by Scudder was afterward paid. It amounted to $1,000 and the money was paid to Scudder, who suggested to Judd that part of the amount be applied to wiping out the two notes, for $500 and $275, and that the balance, amounting to $225, be retained by him as part security on the Kirk note. This plan was carried out.

Assignment and Power of Attorney.

In July, 1914, Judd executed a new assignment to Scudder for the five shares of First National Bank stock, which Scudder was holding as collateral on the $2,500 Kirk note, and for any notes on which he might thereafter become endorser or for any indebtedness which Judd might thereafter incur to Scudder. At the same time, Judd executed a power of attorney to Scudder giving him the right to transfer on the books of the bank the five shares of stock so held by him at any time when he believed that he might be jeopardized by the indebtedness of Judd to him, or by his endorsement of the Kirk note. After the assignment and power of attorney had been executed, Judd gave Scudder a note for $50, which subsequently went to protest and was not paid.

The $2,500 Note Protested.

The $2,500 Kirk note, on which Scudder was endorser, went to protest last December. The note was deposited with the Citizens' National Bank of Margaretville, which notified Scudder that he must take up the protested note.

The Collateral Sold to Cure.
Acting under the power of attorney given to him by Judd, Scudder sold five shares of First National Bank stock to Fred D. Cure of Pine Hill at the book value of the stock, which was $145 a share. This sale occurred on January 8 of this year, on which day the five shares were transferred to Cure's name on the stock book of the bank. The transfer took place at 11 o'clock in the morning. During the day Judd learned that the five shares which he had assigned to Scudder as collateral for the $2,500 Kirk note had been transferred to Cure, and at 7 o'clock that night, in company with

Eugene E. Howe, he visited the Citizens' National Bank and took up the Kirk note, by which action Scudder became relieved of his endorsement.

Judd the same night notified Scudder that the $2,500 note had been paid, and demanded the return of his five shares of bank stock. Scudder replied that he had sold the stock that day, but that if Judd would meet him on Monday morning he would have an accounting and settlement of all their business transactions.

The appointment made for Monday failed to be consummated, and during the day Judd swore out a warrant for Scudder's arrest, charging him with grand larceny in the first degree.

Cure Voted the Stock.

The annual stockholders' meeting of the First National Bank was held the following day, January 11, when Cure gave a proxy for the purpose of voting his shares of stock to Ivan Humphrey. This proxy was delivered by Cure to Todd, who in turn delivered it to Humphrey, who voted it.

Indictments for Three.

The Delaware county grand jury last week indicted Scudder, Todd and Cure for grand larceny in the first degree. The specific charge against Scudder is that of appropriating the five shares of bank stock to his own use; Cure was indicted for appropriating it to the use of Scudder, in voting it; President Todd was indicted for carrying the proxy from Cure to Ivan Humphrey, who attended the stockholders' meeting and voted the stock.

Demurrer Argued in County Court.

The report of the grand jury was made to Supreme Court Justice Senneker, before whom a motion was made in Scudder's case for an injunction of the grand jury minutes. The motion was denied and the cases were moved to the county court by District Attorney Hamilton Hewitt.

Demurrers to the three indictments were interposed before County Judge Raymond, at Delhi on Monday and argued by former District Attorney Alexander Nish of Delaware county for Scudder, President Todd and Cure, with County Attorney John W. Eckert of Kingston of counsel; and by District Attorney Hewitt for The People. Judge Raymond reserved decision.

WINS OFFICE ONLY TO LOSE.

Putnam County Position Wiped Out by Attorney General.

John Brooks of Cold Spring recently elected superintendent of the poor of Putnam county, is barred from taking office by a ruling of Attorney General Woodbury. After a vigorous campaign Brooks was elected on the Republican ticket. Taxpayers protested against the creation of the office and the fight was carried to Albany, with the result that the state's legal department ruled that Putnam county, which has a very small population, is not entitled to such an office. Brooks, who had campaigned all for naught, has resigned as a member of the Putnam Republican county committee.

ASHOKAN MAN COMMITS SUICIDE

John Evory of Ashokan committed suicide on Tuesday afternoon by cutting his throat with a pocket knife while his wife was outside the house. Mr. Evory had been in ill health for some time and for a time it had been necessary to keep a strict watch over him in order to prevent him taking his life. He had been ill of the grip and had become mentally unbalanced from worrying over his prolonged illness and inability to work.

When his wife left the house yesterday for a few minutes to go to a nearby store he secured a pocket knife and during her absence cut his throat. Mrs. Evory was just outside the house when she heard her husband fall to the floor. Dr. Leonard was summoned and with the assistance of Dr. Kemble, who was in the vicinity, made every effort to save Mr. Evory's life, but to no avail.

Mr. Evory was about 40 years old and is survived by his wife and one child. For some time he has been employed about the Ashokan Reservoir and along the Ulster and Delaware railroad.

Coroner Brethaupt of Phoenixia was summoned and took charge of the body.

For some time it had been necessary to watch Mr. Evory and members of a lodge to which Mr. Evory belonged had been assisting his wife in keeping a watch during the night.

BABY WEEK BEGINS SATURDAY

In keeping with other cities, Kingston will observe "Baby Week," beginning on Saturday of this week and continuing until the following Saturday.

Official sanction of "Baby Week" is furnished by the following proclamation issued by Mayor Canfield:

Whereas, Baby Week will be observed throughout the United States, including the city of Kingston, during the period of March fourth to eleventh, inclusive, and

Whereas, such a movement is bound to bring forth wonderfully beneficial results in the interests of the helpless babes; and

Whereas, when we were babes we were given the right to continue to breathe and to continue to live because we were favored with the rays of light and knowledge in our respective homes; or, perhaps, in spite of the shadows of darkness and ignorance that may have existed there; and

Whereas, we were in the yesterday of our respective lives what the babes are in the today of their lives; and

Whereas, the babes will be in the tomorrow of their lives what we are in the today of our lives;

Now, therefore, I, Palmer Canfield, Jr., mayor of the city of Kingston, N. Y., do hereby officially recognize the worthiness and importance of this movement, and I do hereby proclaim this period of March fourth to the eleventh, inclusive, to be "Baby Week" in our city, earnestly and sincerely requesting the people of our city to display an active interest in this, one of the greatest if not the greatest humanitarian work of turning on the searchlight of knowledge of infants brightly and carefully and of placing all mothers and babes within the reach of those rays, and thus giving unto the little babes the treatment and advantages and opportunities that they are entitled to receive from the big babes.

"MY NEW CURATE."

Successful Play by Home Talent to be Repeated Monday.

The Dramatic Society of St. Mary's Church, under whose auspices the famous dramatic play, "My New Curate" was recently presented, has been besieged with requests on the part of the public to give another performance, as a large number of persons were unable to witness the former presentation of the play. Over three thousand witnessed the former presentation, and hundreds were turned away every evening.

A special meeting was held on Monday evening, the entire cast being present, and it was decided to repeat the play in order to satisfy the many requests of the public. A special dress rehearsal will be held on Sunday afternoon, March 5, and the play presented on Monday evening, March 6, beginning at 8 o'clock sharp.

The action of the society is certain to cause general satisfaction, as a large number of people of this city are the possessors of tickets which they were unable to use, owing to the action of the fire chief in limiting the number of persons at each performance.

The play itself as presented by the society was worthy of professionals and the local talent cannot be too highly praised for the clever manner in which they performed. It was without doubt the finest production ever given by home talent in this city and the generous response on the part of local followers of home talent productions was richly deserved. Following the play dancing will be indulged in for which good music will be furnished. The same admission fee will be charged, and the many persons who expect to be present, are certain to have a joyous and entertaining evening.

SON SUES FATHER ON "HOSS" DEAL

An interesting case of a son suing his father was brought to the attention of City Judge William D. Brinrier, Jr., in city court this morning when the action of Louis Basch against his father, Abram Basch, was taken up for trial. Newton H. Fessenden appeared for the son while Andrew J. Cook of Van Etten & Cook, represented the father. The case was not finished today an adjournment being taken until next Monday.

From the story as brought out it seems that the son took three horses to New York city last October and left them with the Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Horse Company, to sell. The horses were sold and the son claims that after the firm had deducted its commissions for handling the sale there was due him the sum of $38.85. The son claims that the New York firm sent a check for this amount made out to the order of "A. Basch" and that his father cashed the check and got the money. The son alleges that he made a demand on his father for the amount of the check which was refused and he has brought suit to recover.

On the other hand the father enters a general denial to the charge. One witness was sworn to this morning's session beside the son, who also gave his testimony. The witness was Abram Handler. He identified a check made out to A. Basch for the sum mentioned and said he had seen A. Basch make the cross mark on the back and that he—the witness—had signed underneath as an endorser and witness.

The son, Louis Basch, then took the stand and told of taking the horses to New York city and of the amount due him which he had demanded from his father, who had refused to pay him.

With the testimony of the son and Mr. Handler the plaintiff's case was rested and Mr. Cook in behalf of his client, the father, made a motion to dismiss the complaint. Mr. Cook contended that the son had no case against the father and that instead he should have sued the horse firm in New York city for the amount of money which he claimed was due him on the sale of the three horses.

Mr. Fessenden strongly opposed the motion to dismiss and stated that he had produced enough evidence to establish a case against the father.

Judge Brinrier after hearing arguments on both sides stated that he would hold the motion to dismiss in abeyance and would hold the case open until next Monday.

Obtained Judgment.

In the case of Orren M. Kennedy against Charles O. Vogt to recover for goods sold and delivered there was no appearance on the part of the defendant and Newton H. Fessenden, who represented plaintiff, moved for a judgment against the defendant which was granted by the court in the sum of $16.70 and costs.

HOUSE TO ENDORSE
PRESIDENT WILSON

Leaders After Conference at the White House Promise Prompt Action on His Request For a Vote on Resolutions.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, March 1.—President Wilson's hands will be supported by congress. Even men who believe that a resolution should pass congress calling upon Americans to stay off armed ships during the present stage of the European war will not put themselves in position of repudiating the position assumed by President Wilson, which he says is made necessary to maintain the nation's honor. The house foreign affairs committee will prepare a resolution today endorsing the president's position. It will be reported under a special rule which will permit its immediate consideration. I am certain that such a resolution will be passed.

Following a conference at the White House which lasted more than an hour, Representative Henry Flood of Virginia, chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, made the above statement. The conference was participated in by Flood and Senators Stone and Kern. At the end of it, Speaker Clark and House Leader Kitchin were sent for on suggestion of the two senators and Flood.

They were asked by the president to aid the program and are expected to do so. It is expected that so soon as the house acts on the proposition it will be pushed through the senate. Whether action will be taken today is doubtful, Flood said, as this is calendar Wednesday under the rules and a single objection would prevent consideration of anything but local measures.

The conference today, like that of last Thursday, was sensational. President Wilson informed the leaders that the policy of the government was most seriously menaced by a belief, widely circulated abroad that the country was not behind the president. This belief was seriously hampering the diplomatic negotiations between this country and the Central European powers, the president said.

In addition, it is understood that the executive, in effect, intimated that the German ambassador and the Austrian charge have been influenced by the agitation in congress to such an extent that they have become convinced that their government could decline to meet the views of the United States.

The president explained that the slightest sign of weakness on the part of the United States at present would destroy the influence of this country abroad, rob the nation of the fruits of its many months of strict neutrality and instead of acting to keep us out of war would be almost certain to involve us.

The decision is understood to have been characterized by a solemn earnestness that emphasized just how critical the present submarine situation really is. There was not the slightest doubt in the minds of those who heard him that the president is absolutely convinced that if he is not backed up by congress at the present time the result will be very disastrous to the country.

The senators explained to the president that there was no doubt that the great majority of members of the upper house were willing to permit the exhaustion of diplomatic measures before taking any action at all. It is understood that they took the position that at no time have there been more than 25 votes in sight for the Gore resolution and that now, with the issue squarely raised, that number would dwindle materially if a record vote was ordered.

In consequence they suggested that the initiative should be taken in the house. The president and Representative Flood accepted this view-point, and especially in view of the big part in the agitation and the speaker and the house leader immediately were telephoned for.

The speaker and Mr. Kitchin agreed with the President that action should be taken without unnecessary delay and most of their discussion was on methods of procedure. It was agreed that the resolution should be framed by the foreign affairs committee and so soon as it has been agreed on the rules committee will be notified and will draft the special rule under which action can be taken.

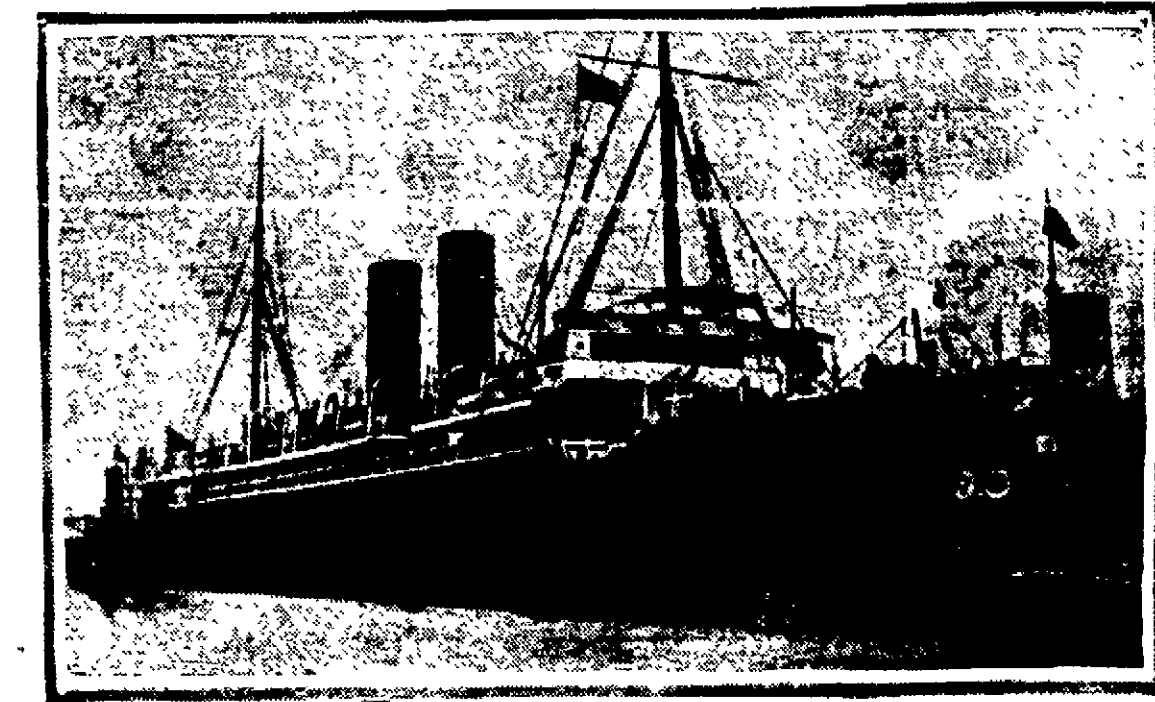

It also was agreed that none of the resolutions now before the House committee would be reported. Instead a new resolution that will satisfy the majority will be drawn. Following is the text of a letter which President Wilson addressed to Edward W. Pou, a member of the Committee on Rules of the House of Representatives:

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, Feb. 29, 1916.

My Dear Mr. Pou:

Inasmuch as I learn that Mr. Henry, the Chairman of the Committee on Rules, is absent in Texas, I take the liberty of calling your attention, as ranking member of the committee, to a matter of grave consequence to the country, which can, I believe, be handled under the rules of the House only by that committee.

The report that there are divided counsels in Congress in regard to the foreign policy of the Government is being made industrious use of in foreign capitals. I believe that it is anywhere credited it cannot fail to do the greatest serious harm. I therefore feel justified in asking that your committee will permit me to urge an early vote upon the resolutions with regard to travel on armed merchantmen, which have re-

P. O. LINER MALOJA

QUEEN MAR SERVICE

BRITISH LINER ON WHICH 151 LIVES WERE LOST.

It is now thought that the total of lives lost on the Peninsular and Oriental liner Maloja, which struck a mine and sank within half an hour, two miles off Dover, will reach 151. Of the total complement of 411 passengers and crew on the vessel only 260 are known to have been saved.

The Maloja sank two miles off Dover, in plain view of people on shore. The vessel went down in half an hour.

Half an hour after the Maloja foundered the tanker Empress of Fort William hit a mine half a mile away and went down, her crew being saved.

There have been many reports that mines were being put in the channel by specially constructed German submarines. Some of them have been laid in the Straits of Dover and some at the mouth of the Thames. A Dutch steamer recently having been damaged off North Foreland, and the Mecklenburg, a Dutch mail steamer, being sunk but with no loss of life.

cently been so much talk about, in order that there may be afforded an immediate opportunity for full public discussion and action upon them, and that all doubts and uncertainties may be swept away and our foreign relations once more cleared of damaging misunderstandings.

The matter is of so grave importance and lies so clearly within field of executive initiative that I venture to hope that your committee will not think that I am talking unwarranted liberty in making this suggestion as to the business of the House, and I very earnestly commend it to their immediate consideration.

Cordially and sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

MOTOR ICEBOAT A SLOW PROPOSITION

Astor Craft Had Try-Out On Hudson River But Gasoline Froze and Home Made Craft Was Stalled For Afternoon.

That somebody, whether practical joker or war sympathizer, has watered the gasoline in Vincent Astor's garage at Rhinecliff became known Tuesday afternoon when several employees of the Astor estate attempted to start a new motor ice flyer on the Hudson river. The motive power was a huge wood propeller stationed aft and the flyer stood on two sleds, the four runners being placed about the same as the wheels on the average wagon. It was brought down to the ice for its preliminary trial about 4:30 o'clock.

But work as hard as they might the operators were unable to get more than a few explosions from the engine although they primed it again and again, removed spark plugs and tried almost every device known to the motoring art. After an hour and a half's labor cranking the engine, the men investigated the carburetor to find the gasoline frozen. The feed pipe was also found to be stopped with ice and the flyer was then taken back to shore for a general thaw-out. Members of the National Security League and others on hand to witness the trials were much disappointed. It is expected that the iceboat will be in operation today with a better quality of gasoline. According to the men in charge of the boat, the gasoline they had contained a large proportion of water and they planned to investigate where this came from today. The boat, they said, was entirely home made except for the gasoline tank, which came from Henry Ford.

Peaches Defeat Cherries.

The two teams tied for first place at the close of the league and a series of three games was arranged to play off the tie and decide the championship. The Peaches by their victory Tuesday clinched the championship by winning two of the three games. The Peaches will each be presented with a silver medal for their work. The members of the winning team are Thompson, Every, Kirchner, Horton, Huested and Adams. The members of the Cherries are Vignes, Bruyn, Leventhal, Zeh and Smith.

This evening at 8 o'clock the employed boys will hold the first three events in the international athletic contest being held in Y. M. C. A.'s all over the world.

Big Fuss Over Five Shares of Bank Stock Pledged as Security For a Loan That Was Afterward Paid.

In connection with the indictment last week by the Delaware county grand jury of Augustus H. Todd, president of the First National Bank of Griffin Corners; John E. Scudder, a bank director, and Fred D. Cure of Pine Hill, son of U. S. Grant Cure and likewise a director of the bank, the three of whom were indicted for grand larceny in the first degree, are some interesting legal questions.

The indictments do not in any way affect the bank, but arise over the transfer of five shares of the capital stock of the bank, which were being held by Scudder as collateral security for indebtedness of Harold O. Judd, to Fred D. Cure.

Indebtedness Dates Back to 1912. In 1912, Harold O. Judd, who is engaged in business in Griffin Corners, became indebted to John E. Scudder on two notes, one for $500 and the other for $275, to secure the payment of which he assigned to Scudder five shares of stock of the First National Bank of Griffin Corners, which he owned.

Subsequently, at the request of Judd, Scudder became endorser on a note for $2,500 given by a man named Kirk which was discounted at the bank for the benefit of Eugene E. Howe, a lawyer of Griffin Corners. To secure Scudder's signature to this $2,500 note, Judd assigned to Scudder several mortgages which he owned. One of the mortgages so held by Scudder was afterward paid. It amounted to $1,000 and the money was paid to Scudder, who suggested to Judd that part of the amount be applied to "writing out the two notes for $500 and $275, and that the balance, amounting to $225, be retained by him as part security on the Kirk note. This plan was carried out.

Assignment and Power of Attorney.

In July, 1914, Judd executed a new assignment to Scudder for the five shares of First National Bank stock, which Scudder was holding as collateral on the $2,500 Kirk note, and for any notes on which he might thereafter become endorser, or for any indebtedness which Judd might thereafter incur to Scudder. At the same time, Judd executed a power of attorney to Scudder giving him the right to transfer on the books of the bank the five shares of stock so held by him at any time when he believed that he might be jeopardized by the indebtedness of Judd to him, or by his endorsement of the Kirk note. After the assignment and power of attorney had been executed, Judd gave Scudder a note for $50, which subsequently went to protest and was not paid.

The $2,500 Note Protested.

The $2,500 Kirk note, on which Scudder was endorser, went to protest last December. The note was deposited with the Citizens' National Bank of Margaretville, which notified Scudder that he must take up the protested note.

The Collateral Sold to Cure.

Acting under the power of attorney given to him by Judd, Scudder sold five shares of First National Bank stock to Fred D. Cure of Pine Hill at the book value of the stock, which was $145 a share. This sale occurred on January 2 of this year, in which day the five shares were transferred to Cure's name on the stock book of the bank. The transfer took place at 11 o'clock in the morning. During the day Judd learned that the five shares which he had assigned to Scudder as collateral for the $2,500 Kirk note had been transferred to Cure, and at 7 o'clock that night, in company with

Eugene E. Howe, he visited the Citizens' National Bank and took up the Kirk note, by which action Scudder became relieved of his endorsement.

Judd the same night notified Scudder that the $2,500 note had been paid, and demanded the return of his five shares of bank stock. Scudder replied that he had sold the stock that day, but that if Judd would meet him on Monday morning he would have an accounting and settlement of all their business transactions.

The appointment made for Monday failed to be consummated, and during the day Judd swore out a warrant for Scudder's arrest, charging him with grand larceny in the first degree.

Cure Voted the Stock.

The annual stockholders' meeting of the First National Bank was held the following day, January 11, when Cure gave a proxy for the purpose of voting his shares of stock to Ivan Humphrey. This proxy was delivered by Cure to Todd, who in turn delivered it to Humphrey, who voted it.

Indictments for Three.

The Delaware county grand jury last week indicted Scudder, Todd and Cure for grand larceny in the first degree. The specific charge against Scudder is that of appropriating the five shares of bank stock to his own use. Cure was indicted for appropriating it to the use of Scudder, in voting it; President Todd was indicted for carrying the proxy from Cure to Ivan Humphrey, who attended the stockholders' meeting and voted the stock.

Demurrer Argued in County Court. The report of the grand jury was made to Supreme Court Justice Sewell, before whom a motion was made in Scudder's case for an indictment of the grand jury minutes. The motion was denied and the cases were moved to the county court by District Attorney Hamilton Hewitt.

Demurrers to the three indictments were interposed before County Judge Raymond at Delhi on Monday and argued by Former District Attorney Alexander Nish of Delaware county for Scudder, President Todd and Cure, with County Attorney John W. Eckert of Kingston of counsel; and by District Attorney Hewitt for The People.

Judge Raymond reserved decision.

WINS OFFICE ONLY TO LOSE.

Putnam County Position Wiped Out by Attorney General.

John Brooks of Cold Spring recently elected superintendent of the poor of Putnam county, is barred from taking office by a ruling of Attorney General Woodbury. After a vigorous campaign Brooks was elected on the Republican ticket. Taxpayers protested against the creation of the office and the fight was carried to Albany, with the result that the state's legal department ruled that Putnam county, which has a very small population, is not entitled to such an office. Brooks, who had a campaign all for naught, has resigned as a member of the Putnam Republican county committee.

ASHOKAN MAN
COMMITTS SUICIDE

John Evory of Ashokan committed suicide on Tuesday afternoon by cutting his throat with a pocket knife while his wife was outside the house. Mr. Evory had been in ill health for some time and for a time it had been necessary to keep a strict watch over him in order to prevent him taking his life. He had been ill of the grip and had become mentally unbalanced from worrying over his prolonged illness and inability to work.

When his wife left the house yesterday for a few minutes to go to a nearby store he secured a pocket knife and during her absence cut his throat. Mrs. Evory was just outside the house when she heard her husband fall to the floor. Dr. Leonard was summoned and with the assistance of Dr. Kemble, who was in the vicinity, made every effort to save Mr. Evory's life, but to no avail.

Mr. Evory was about 40 years old and is survived by his wife and one child. For some time he had been employed about the Ashokan reservoir and along the Ulster & Delaware railroad.

Coroner Breithaupt of Phoenixia was summoned and took charge of the body.

For some time it had been necessary to watch Mr. Evory and members of a lodge to which Mr. Evory belonged had been assisting the wife in keeping a watch during the night.

Official sanction of "Baby Week" is furnished by the following proclamation issued by Mayor Canfield.

Whereas, Baby Week will be observed throughout the United States, including the city of Kingston, during the period of March fourth to eleventh, inclusive, and Whereas, such a movement is bound to bring forth wonderfully beneficial results in the interests of the helpless babes; and

Whereas, when we were babes we were given the right to continue to breathe and to continue to live because we were favored with the rays of light and knowledge in our respective homes, or, perhaps, in spite of the shadows of darkness and ignorance that may have existed there; and

Whereas, we were in the yesterday of our respective lives what the babes are in the today of their lives; and

Whereas, the babes will be in the tomorrow of their lives what we are in the today of our lives; and Now, therefore, I, Palmer Canfield, Jr., mayor of the city of Kingston, N. Y., do hereby officially recognize the worthiness and importance of this movement, and I do hereby proclaim the period of March fourth to the eleventh, inclusive, to be Baby Week in our city, earnestly and sincerely requesting the people of our city to display an active interest in this, one of the greatest if not the greatest humanitarian work of knowledge of infants, brightly and carefully, and of placing all mothers and babes within the reach of those rays, and thus giving to the little babes the treatment and advantages and opportunities that they are entitled to receive from the big babes.

"MY NEW CURATE."

Successful Play by Home Talent to be Repeated Monday.

The Dramatic Society of St. Mary's Church, under whose auspices the famous dramatic play, "My New Curate" was recently presented, has been besieged with requests on the part of the public to give another performance, as a large number of persons were unable to witness the former presentation of the play. Over three thousand witnessed the former presentation, and hundreds were turned away every evening.

A special meeting was held on Monday evening, the entire cast being present, and it was decided to repeat the play in order to satisfy the many requests of the public. A special dress rehearsal will be held on Sunday afternoon, March 5, and the play presented on Monday evening, March 6, beginning at 8 o'clock sharp.

The action of the society is certain to cause general satisfaction, as a large number of people of this city are the possessors of tickets which they were unable to use, owing to the action of the fire chief in limiting the number of persons at each performance.

The play itself as presented by the society was worthy of professionals and the local talent cannot be too highly praised for the clever manner in which they performed. It was without doubt the finest production ever given by home talent in this city and the generous response on the part of local followers of home talent productions was richly deserved. Following the play dancing will be indulged in for which good music will be furnished. The same admission fee will be charged, and the many persons who expect to be present are certain to have a joyous and entertaining evening.

SON SUES FATHER
ON "HOSS" DEAL

An interesting case of a son suing his father was brought to the attention of City Judge William D. Brinrier, Jr., in city court this morning when the action of Louis Basch against his father, Abram Basch, was taken up for trial. Newton H. Fessenden appeared for the son while Andrew J. Cook of Van Etten & Cook, represented the father. The case was not finished today an adjournment being taken until next Monday.

From the story as brought out it seems that the son took three horses to New York city last October and left them with the Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Horse Company, to sell. The horses were sold and the son claims that after the firm had deducted its commissions for handling the sale there was due him the sum of $38.85. The son claims that the New York firm sent a check for this amount made out to the order of "A. Basch" and that his father cashed the check and got the money. The son alleges that he made a demand on his father for the amount of the check which was refused and he has brought suit to recover.

On the other hand the father enters a general denial to the charge.

One witness was sworn at this morning's session beside the son, who also gave his testimony. The witness was Abram Handler. He identified a check made out to A. Basch for the sum mentioned and said he had seen A. Basch make the cross mark on the back and that he, the witness, had signed underneath as an endorser and witness.

The son, Louis Basch, then took the stand and told of taking the horses to New York city and of the amount due him which he had demanded from his father, who had refused to pay him.

With the testimony of the son and Mr. Handler the plaintiff's case was rested and Mr. Cook in behalf of his client, the father, made a motion to dismiss the complaint. Mr. Cook contended that the son had no case against the father and that instead he should have sued the horse firm in New York city for the amount of money which he claimed was due him on the sale of the three horses.

Mr. Fessenden strongly opposed the motion to dismiss and stated that he had produced enough evidence to establish a case against the father.

Judge Brinrier after hearing arguments on both sides stated that he would hold the motion to dismiss in abeyance and would hold the case open until next Monday.

Obtained Judgment.

In the case of Orren M. Kennedy against Charles O. Vogt to recover for goods sold and delivered there was no appearance on the part of the defendant and Newton H. Fessenden, who represented plaintiff, moved for a judgment against the defendant which was granted by the court in the sum of $16.70 and costs.

LONG DRIVE FATAL TO HORSE.

Stoppage of Ferry Service Proved Costly to Kingston Merchants.

Stoppage of the ferry Transport last Friday worked a hardship to several Kingston merchants who had delivery wagons engaged in Rhinecliff that day. Matthews and Harrison had one of their fine teams on the east bank of the Hudson at the time and rather than risk crossing on the ice, it was decided to drive down the river to Poughkeepsie and take the ferry there to Highland, making a 35 mile drive to Kingston. The horses appeared to stand the trip all right but later showed signs of exhaustion and one of them died. The other is said to be in a serious condition. The team was valued at $600.

Stock and Cords also had a team left at Rhinecliff and had it driven home by way of Highland. These horses, however, are lighter and showed no ill effects of the long trip home.

Fun Making in "The Only Girl."

Family squabbles that arise out of a bit of catty gossip furnish most of the fun for "The Only Girl," Joe Weber's popular musical farce, which will show at the Kingston Opera House Thursday night. One of the famous sayings is that of Patsy, the subterfuge, who says: "I hope that when women get the vote they will show more sense at the polls than they do at the altar." The story of the play, in brief, is that of a young librettist, sworn to single life, whose three pals marry and leave him. A woman playing an air that would fit nicely in his new opera agrees to a working compact by which the personal element and danger of disruption of the librettist's antiwoman views are eliminated. The return of the pals with their wives reveals rifts in the marital lutes and convinces the librettist of the soundness of his views until "The Only Girl" convinces him he is wrong. The cast and songs measure up to the expectations of what a musical farce should be.

18 POUNDS OF BLOOD

Is the average quantity in a healthy adult, but it is the quality of the blood that determines our strength to resist sickness. With weak blood we find cold hands and chilly feet; in children an aversion to study, and in adults rheumatic tendencies.

In changing seasons get abundant fresh air and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals, because Scott's Emulsion is a rich blood-food that will increase both quantity and quality of the blood while it warms the body and helps carry off the impurities.

When multitudes of people are to-day taking Scott's Emulsion to avert winter sickness, and are giving it to their children, it is careless to neglect its benefits. Look out for substitutes. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 15-26

DELICIOUS DISHES.

This is not new, but is not well enough known. Serve pumpkin pie with whipped cream generously sprinkled with grated cheese.

Pumpkin pie should not be too sweet. Use a cupful of pumpkin, two eggs and a pint of milk, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of ginger, a grating of nutmeg, a little lemon rind and a dash of cinnamon. If the pumpkin is the sweet kind, a quarter of a cupful of sugar will be ample. Bake this pie at least an hour, putting it into a hot oven at first to bake the crust, then lower the heat to finish the baking.

Tomato Ice.—Cook a quart of tomatoes, seasoned with grated nutmeg, sugar, paprika, salt and a little grated lemon peel. Strain through a sieve and freeze. Use an ice cream dipper to serve it, putting a cone on a nest of head lettuce. Cover with mayonnaise and serve with toasted cheese crackers.

Apple-Fig Roly-Poly.—An unusual dessert and most appetizing, may be made by rolling out a rich biscuit dough, then spread it with figs that have been cooked in a double boiler with enough water to soften. Then beat until smooth, add a little grated lemon peel and enough juice to flavor well. Spread this on the dough with a cupful of chopped apple, roll up and pinch the ends; place in a deep dish and cover with a cupful of boiling water, a half cupful of brown sugar, three tablespoonfuls of butter and two of lemon juice. Bake one hour. The sauce in which it is baked will be sufficient to serve with it.

Brown Onion Soup.—Cut fine four large onions. Melt in a saucepan two tablespoonfuls of butter, add the onions, cover and cook slowly, stirring until they are a pale yellow. Dredge with two tablespoonfuls of flour, cook a few minutes until the flour is well blended with the fat, then stir in a quart of hot milk. Serve with small squares of fried bread.

This wonderful record should make a deep impression on those who have teeth which require extraction and desire to have the operation done painlessly.

FREIGHT EMBARGO ANNOYS SHIPPERS

West Shore Railroad Refuses Shipments Over Central New England and New Haven Lines—Candy Company Sends Goods to Highland as Result.

Embargoes declared upon carload and less than carload lots of freight destined for any points on the New York, New Haven and Hartford or Central New England railroad systems on Tuesday morning are proving considerable embarrassment to Kingston shippers. Such shipments are refused at the West Shore railroad freight house here and include merchandise of every description. Huge accumulations of loaded cars threaten a tie-up of the two New England systems named and it is for this cause that the new order was issued, according to the New Haven railroad.

While the order affects shipments from the Kingston freight house, it was stated that the Central New England railroad was accepting shipments from Rhinecliff for certain points on its lines and, hence, there is a big business being done by trucking lines across the ice on the Hudson today.

A shipment of 25 cases of confectionery from the Washington Candy Company was refused at the freight house and was finally taken to Connecticut destinations from Poughkeepsie.

Other companies which are being seriously handicapped by the new embargo are the W. G. Browne Company and the Universal Road Machinery Company.

The new embargoes cover nearly all forms of machinery and building material. While there are no exceptions to the ban on local shipments, the Poughkeepsie offices of the two New England roads have included live stock, foodstuffs, gasoline, perishable freight and news print papers among the exceptions. A similar embargo for goods consigned to points on the Boston and Albany railroad has been in effect some time but has not affected Kingston to any appreciable extent. The New Haven Company says that it has 55,526 freight cars in operation today where 36,000 was the total in use the same day last year, and in spite of this large number the loaded cars have increased 2,000 since February 25. Co-operation of the shippers is asked until the congestion can be cleared.

MRS. GENEVIEVE CLARK THOMSON.

MRS. CLARK THOMSON URGES MADE IN AMERICA COLORS FOR WOMEN AS ENGLAND RELEASES $5,000,000 WORTH OF GERMAN DYES.

Washington, March 1.—Simultaneously with the call sent out by Mrs. James M. Thomson, daughter of Speaker Champ Clark, to 100,000 American women to wear "simple" colors as much as possible during the ensuing spring and summer, comes the news from England that the British Government has released $5,000,000 worth of dye stuffs consigned to American manufacturers. If Germany can be persuaded to raise the embargo on dye-stuffs, the American dyers will soon have in their hands sufficient colorings to last through the season.

Mrs. Thomson is the chairman of the executive committee of the Woman's National Made-in-the U. S. A. League. Tariff legislation to encourage and protect the establishment of an extensive coal tar dye industry in the United States is being considered by the House Ways and Means Committee. The committee will frame a tentative measure to protect the new industry from destructive competition by foreign tar producers, particularly the German coal tar dye monopoly.

After the president approves the dye stuff bill, the measure will be incorporated by the Ways and Means Committee in a general tariff bill. This measure, in addition to the dye-stuff tariff, will provide general "anti-dumping" clause to protect American manufacturers from price-cutting campaigns by foreign producers, and legislation creating the tariff commission for which the President has asked.

Odd Tobacco Pipe Borer.

Travelers among the Sioux Indians are much impressed with the perfect smoothness of the bore in their pipe stems. Without the use of a tool of any kind they make a perfect bore in the twigs of ash trees, which they use for musical instruments and for pipes. To accomplish this end they employ the larvae of a butterfly which inhabits the ash tree. The Indians remove the pith for about three inches from the stick they wish bored. Into this cavity they place one of the larvae of the ash tree, which gradually eats its way down through the pith until the bore is completed. A little heat applied to the wood expedites the work of the larvae. The Indians consider both the tube made in this way and the larvae as sacred as their idols.—Popular Science Monthly.

"The younger members of a congregation sometimes ask shrewd questions," says a parson. "I once told a very young class that there were as many commandments as there were fingers and thumbs on the two hands. One of my listeners introduced a small friend to me a day or so after with the question: "'Please, sir, here's Jim. He's only got three fingers on his left hand on account of an accident, and me an' him's been talkin' it over since last Sunday which one of them commandments wouldn't belong to him.'"—Buffalo News.

Economy in Handkerchiefs.

Students of economy might well take a leaf out of the book of Mrs. Jerome Bonaparte, whom Mrs. Stirling, in her biography, describes as saving money over her pocket handkerchiefs. She washed them herself, "and, having dried and folded them, in order to avoid ironing, she would place them carefully between two books and seat herself upon them."—London Standard.

A Social Hireling

Story of an English Gentleman Down on His Luck.

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

A young man whose clothes were of fine texture, of an English cut and beginning to show signs of long wear stepped into an office on an upper floor of a skyscraper on Fifth avenue, New York, and approached a sleek, gentleman-like man sitting at a rosewood desk.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the man who entered, with a smooth English accent. "I have understood that you desire persons for social purposes."

"I'm, I sometimes have occasion to recommend a young man to fill a—"

"I do."

"There is also need for dinner substitutes."

"Beg pardon?"

"You are not familiar with New York society methods?"

"I have recently come from London, where I have had the entrée to the smart set."

"Very good. We have here a number of families who have recently become enormously rich and who are desirous of getting into society. We call them social climbers. They must begin by inviting the few persons in the swim they can get to their functions, filling up with those who are not in the swim, gradually increasing the number of the former and diminishing the latter. It is essential that the fillers should be familiar with the customs of swifdom. I perceive from your manner that you will make an excellent filler."

"What are your terms?"

"In the beginning I can pay you $5 for a dancing party and $25 for a dinner."

"Why is the greater work paid the lesser price?"

"Because the dancer uses his heels and need not betray himself by saying anything. The diner must talk."

"I see. One must have intellect to be a dinner companion."

"Not at all. He must be able to talk well, not nothing. Can you do that?"

"I can only assure you that I have been in society all my life. Only being out of funds induces me to offer my services for what you call a filler."

"Very good. Mrs. Barnaby Ritz gives a dinner tonight and needs several young men. The number has been made up with one exception. Have you evening dress?"

"My evening dress is all I have. It is in fair condition."

"I presume you will need a little something for carriage and other trifles," handing the man five five-dollar bills.

"But, my dear sir, you don't know me. What is to prevent my pocketing this money and not seeing you again?"

"Excuse me for contradicting you. I do know you. What you say is by no means complimentary to my discernment. I know a gentleman when I see him and would know him if he were in the garb of a huckster."

"Thank you very much."

The agent, Mr. Plummer Short, took the man's name and address, the name given being Ralph Plummer.

"Assumed?" said Mr. Short dryly.

"As you like," was the response.

When Mr. Plummer appeared at Mrs. Ritz's—he was directed to be on hand in time to be looked over—she brought a loggnette to bear on him and after asking him a few questions said:

"My most blue-blooded guest for the evening is Miss De Witt. She is a descendant of John De Witt, a great something or other of Holland. I don't mind telling you that I secured her because my son saved her from being run over by an auto. You are the only man who is to dine here today who will be up to her high stepping gait. Do what you can to entertain her. I'll send you something substantial tomorrow."

Mr. Plummer was shown into a room where the guests were assembled. They were not all unrefined, and Miss De Witt was evidently high bred. But she was not as Mrs. Ritz had described her, being unassuming and lady-like. Though she was not among persons of her own set, she did not indicate by her manner that she was out of place. When her dinner companion was introduced to her she looked at him with an expression that he could not well define. It might have been curiosity; it might have been surprise.

"Mr. Plummer, did you say, Mrs. Ritz?"

"Yes. This is Mr. Plummer, an old friend of ours."

The filler passed one of the pleasantest evenings of his life, feeling from the first on rapport with his companion. Mrs. Ritz conducted herself quite well, considering that her husband had started his career as a foundryman, but several of her guests made serious breaks. At such times Miss De Witt either went on with what she was saying to Mr. Plummer or listened attentively to what he said to her altogether ignoring the breach. Plummer was too much engrossed with her to even know that a case of ill breeding had occurred.

When the hour for departure came Miss De Witt did not wait for Mr. Plummer to ask permission to call upon her. It is well she did not, for he would not have made the request. He was, however, much pleased when she said, "Come and see me," though he felt that had she known that he was a filler she would certainly not have done so. As he was passing out Mrs. Ritz drew him aside and slipped a bit of paper into his hand, saying that he had done so well that she would not wait to send it to him. He glanced at it and handed it back to her.

"Excuse me, Mrs. Ritz," he said.

"But Mr. Short has settled with me."

"But this is extra."

Plummer winced. What! Accept a tip for entertaining his dinner companion? Poverty had brought him to hiring himself out for a social purpose, but to be paid for the pleasure Miss De Witt had given him—this was more than he could bear. Seizing his hat and coat, he bolted for the door.

He had no idea of accepting Miss De Witt's invitation. Being a gentleman, he felt that to do so while he was thus making his living would be an outrage. He had no choice but to proceed. For the present, in the only occupation that was open to him and must use it or starve. Mr. Short gave him all the employment he would accept, which was barely enough to keep body and soul together. He did not meet Miss De Witt again at any of the places he danced or dined, for she did not know the persons who gave the entertainments.

But one morning he received a valuable invitation—not a paid one—to a musicale given by a Mrs. Yearsley. Who Mrs. Yearsley was or why she had invited him he did not know. Curiosity led him to accept. What was his surprise, after greeting the hostess, to be led up to Miss De Witt.

"You two have met before, I believe," said Mrs. Yearsley. "I leave him with you, Catherine; see that he is properly taken care of."

"Am I indebted to you for this invitation?" he asked.

"I am indebted to my friend Mrs. Yearsley for inviting you. But you don't deserve it. You have been very rude to me."

"In what way?"

"You have paid no attention to my request that you should call on me."

Plummer hesitated in replying to this, finally saying that it would not be proper for him to accept an invitation to call upon a lady into whose social circle he had no entrée.

"Your excuse is not accepted."

"Very well; I will do myself the honor to call very soon."

"I shall expect you."

"I must impose one condition."

"What is it?"

"That you ask for no more invitations for me."

"Certainly," replied the lady, "since you do not wish it."

She asked for no reason, which somewhat puzzled Mr. Plummer. Did she know that he had been present at Mrs. Ritz's as a filler? He thought not. Those who hired such persons were not likely to tell of their action.

He made the call and continued his acquaintance with Miss De Witt. One day a letter was handed to him by a young man, who said to him:

"Are you Mr. Ralph Plummer?"

"I am."

"I am from Elkins & Elkins, attorneys. They have been hunting you for some time."

Plummer tore off the envelope and uncovered another addressed to Sir Ralph Trevor.

"Is that you?" asked the lawyer's clerk.

Plummer's only reply was to open the second envelope. A letter contained in it announced to him that an uncle in England had died childless and he was heir to his title.

Plummer, or, rather, Sir Ralph Trevor, leaving the messenger to take care of himself, went out, called a cab and directed the driver to take him to Miss De Witt's home.

"I have come," he said to her, "to make a confession. Poverty and an unwillingness to be dependent on those in England who"—

"Call it rather pride."

"Call it what you like, my position in America has been contemptible. But there has been a change. I am going to tell you who I really am."

"There is no need to tell me that. You are a gentleman, for I once met you in London society."

"You met me?"

"For only a moment. I don't wonder that you have not remembered me."

"Why have you not told me this?"

"Because you seemed to prefer to remain incognito."

"And you know how I have been keeping myself from starvation here?"

Miss De Witt prevaricated. She knew, for Mrs. Ritz had told her. But she wished to make it easy for him. She said that was none of her affair. He informed her that he was an orphan; that his uncle had led him to suppose that he would be his heir to his fortune, as well as to his title, and had thereupon undertaken to direct his every action. The young man had rebelled and gone away. Death had brought a great change and he was going back to England.

Among the American born ladies prominent in English society is Lady Trevor, who was Miss De Witt of New York. When she comes to America she comes alone. Her husband does not rejoin her because of the period when he was a social hireling.

But in this Sir Ralph is oversensitive. In America there are no titles. Consequently Americans—place very high value upon them. It would not matter among such if a title were snatched all over; it would still be coveted. Arms quartered with prison stripes are still prized, and the social climber would prefer any bar sinister to no arms at all. It is quite likely that if Sir Ralph returned to the scene of his operations as a social filler the fact that he was capable of being a filler would redound to his credit.

Cutting.

A Scotch lawyer was well reproved when, seated by a lady fully aware of her own plain looks, having bowed to his hostess in giving the toast, "Honest Men and Honorable Ladies," she rejoined, raising her own glass, "We may both drink that toast, since it refers to neither of us."

Fully Occupied.

"Beauty is only skin deep." "I consider that a wise provision of nature." "Why so?" "With that limitation the girls are kept busy enough."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

LONG DRIVE FATAL TO HORSE.

Stoppage of Ferry Service Proved Costly to Kingston Merchants.

Stoppage of the ferry Transport last Friday worked a hardship to several Kingston merchants who had delivery wagons engaged in Rhinecliff that day. Matthews and Harrison had one of their fine teams on the east bank of the Hudson at the time and rather than risk crossing on the ice, it was decided to drive down the river to Poughkeepsie and take the ferry there to Highland, making a 35 mile drive to Kingston. The horses appeared to stand the trip all right but later showed signs of exhaustion and one of them died. The other is said to be in a serious condition. The team was valued at $600.

Stock and Cordis also had a team left at Rhinecliff and had it driven home by way of Highland. These horses, however, are lighter and showed no ill effects of the long trip home.

Fun Making in "The Only Girl."

Family squabbles that arise out of a bit of catty gossip furnish most of the fun for "The Only Girl," Joe Weber's popular musical farce, which will show at the Kingston Opera House Thursday night. One of the famous sayings is that of Patsy, the soubrette, who says: "I hope that when women get the vote they will show more sense at the polls than they do at the altar." The story of the play, in brief, is that of a young librettist, sworn to single life, whose three pals marry and leave him. A woman playing an air that would fit nicely in his new opera agrees to a working compact by which the personal element and danger of disruption of the librettist's anti-woman views are eliminated. The return of the pals with their wives reveals rifts in the marital lutes and convinces the librettist of the soundness of his views until "The Only Girl" convinces him he is wrong. The cast and songs measure up to the expectations of what a musical farce should be.

is the average quantity in a healthy adult, but it is the quality of the blood that determines our strength to resist sickness. With weak blood we find cold hands and chilly feet; in children an aversion to study, and in adults rheumatic tendencies.

In changing seasons get abundant fresh air and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals, because Scott's Emulsion is a rich blood-food that will increase both quantity and quality of the blood while it warms the body and helps carry off the impurities.

When multitudes of people are today taking Scott's Emulsion to avert winter sickness, and are giving it to their children, it is careless to neglect its benefits. Look out for substitutes. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 15-26

DELICIOUS DISHES.

This is not new, but is not well enough known. Serve pumpkin pie with whipped cream generously sprinkled with grated cheese.

Pumpkin pie should not be too sweet. Use a cupful of pumpkin, two eggs and a pinch of salt, a quarter of a teaspoonful of ginger, a grating of nutmeg, a little lemon rind and a dash of cinnamon. If the pumpkin is the sweet kind, a quarter of a cupful of sugar will be ample. Bake this pie at least an hour, putting it into a hot oven at first to bake the crust, then lower the heat to finish the baking.

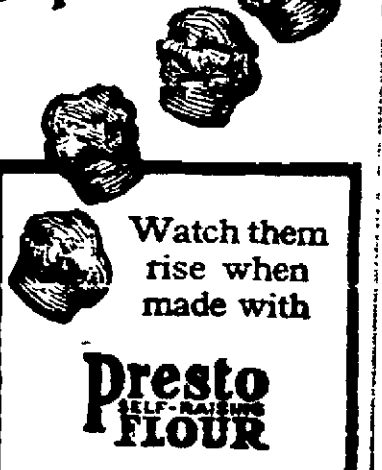

Tomato Ice.—Cook a quart of tomatoes, seasoned with grated nutmeg, sugar, paprika, salt and a little grated lemon peel. Strain through a sieve and freeze. Use an ice cream dipper to serve it, putting a cone on a nest of head lettuce. Cover with mayonnaise and serve with toasted cheese crackers.

Apple-Fig Roly-Poly.—An unusual dessert and most appetizing, may be made by rolling out a rich biscuit dough, then spread it with figs that have been cooked in a double boiler with enough water to soften. Then beat until smooth, add a little grated lemon peel and enough juice to flavor well. Spread this on the dough with a cupful of chopped apple, roll up and pinch the ends; place in a deep dish and cover with a cupful of boiling water. A half cupful of brown sugar, three tablespoonfuls of butter and two of lemon juice. Bake one hour. The sauce in which it is baked will be sufficient to serve with it.

Brown Onion Soup.—Cut fine four large onions. Melt in a saucepan two tablespoonfuls of butter, add the onions, cover and cook slowly, stirring until they are a pale yellow. Dredge with two tablespoonfuls of flour, cook a few minutes until the flour is well blended with the fat, then stir in a quart of hot milk. Serve with small squares of fried bread.

Painless Extractions

During the year 1915 the Cady Dental Offices in Poughkeepsie, Kingston, Newburgh and Middletown performed over ten thousand extractions. These operations were painless. Local Anaesthetics were used in the majority of cases but nitrous oxide gas in a few. This wonderful record should make a deep impression on those who have teeth which require extraction and desire to have the operation done painlessly.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR FRUIT SHIPMENTS

Growers Meet With Railroad Officials Who Offer Facilities for Shipping by Freight and Eliminating High Express Charges.

A joint meeting of the members of the Hudson River Fruit Exchange and other fruit growers along the West Shore Railroad, and representatives of the New York Central Railroad, was held at Milton on February 24, beginning at 2 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing the shipment of fruits from the Hudson valley to New York city by freight.

W. Y. Velle, president of the Hudson River Fruit Exchange, acted as chairman and requested that someone outside the exchange be elected to act as secretary. R. M. Rownd nominated W. H. Hook, Manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, as secretary. The nomination was seconded and Mr. Hook was unanimously elected secretary.

C. H. Velle called on F. W. Vall to open the subject. Mr. Vall stated that at a meeting called in Poughkeepsie when the fruit growers present met with a representative of the New York Central Railroad it had been proposed that a fast freight be run from Kingston, stopping at stations and picking up car loads of fruit and then proceed to Weehawken where the cars would be transferred to Desbrosses street, New York city. It requires that fruit be shipped in car load lots and loaded by one shipper who should represent all the shippers in the car and when it reached New York city a representative should receive it to re-shipment to the several commission men or other consignees.

Similar Situation at Germantown.

Mr. Velle called on Mr. McMichael of the New York Central who spoke of similar situations. He said: "Germantown had a proposition similar to that on this side of the river each grower was shipping independently to New York in part car load lots. The New York Central suggested they organize, which was done, and consequently the fruit growers have been shipping in car load lots and have received the benefit of car load lot rates instead of paying the higher rate which prevails on less than car load lots."

"The railroad must have an organization to deal with. Growers must ship as a unit to receive car load. It is necessary to have one shipper, or in other words the car must be shipped by one shipper to one consignee, or one man or firm. Consequently shippers organize for shipping purposes. The express and boat service has not been satisfactory and a change is needed. The railroad will set off refrigerator cars at different stations. The train will leave Ulster Park at about 3:30 o'clock and Roseton at about 4:30. The cars arriving at Weehawken are transferred to a float and floated to Desbrosses street and delivered on the pier. A delivery to the pier must be arranged so as not to damage the fruit."

Mr. McMichael wished to re-emphasize the necessity of one shipper to one shipper. Rates he said were subject to official classification.

Rates on Different Fruit.

Berries take the first class; minimum car loads 17,000 pounds less than carload lots one and one half regular rates. Peaches same as berries except minimum car is 16,000 pounds. Currants same as berries except minimum car is 20,000 pounds. Grapes second class, minimum car 20,000 pounds. Pears and apples fifth class minimum car 24,000 pounds.

Big Difference in Rate.

To illustrate the saving he stated that the first class rate from Milton to Desbrosses street was 2 cents per hundred in car lots by freight while the express rate between the same points was 45 cents per hundred.

Different questions which might arise must be settled by a committee and it was suggested that such be formed. Mr. McMichael said the railroad wanted to deal with a small unit instead of large groups.

Mr. Velle wanted an explanation of "one shipper to one consignee." Mr. McMichael read official classification No. 5. In order to secure car load rates the car must be shipped from one station on one day by one shipper to one consignee to one destination. In the case of fruit to different commission merchants it can be arranged to have it distributed by the one consignee. Mr. Velle then gave an opportunity for asking questions.

J. H. Clarke asked what about different fruits in one car? In that case the whole car is charged according to the highest rating and it is better to put apples and pears in a separate car. Walter Clarke wanted to know if the time of delivery could be guaranteed. Mr. McMichael said it could not as physical conditions might interfere. The train was due in Weehawken at 9 a. m., but fog, etc., might delay transportation. Mr. Powers wanted to know if it could be unloaded at Weehawken, but Mr. McMichael thought it would not be wise. Mr. Rownd asked if delivery could be assured by 12 o'clock and was answered that it could. The float could be unloaded by that time. Mr. Vall, speaking to commission men present, wanted to know at what time express shipments were now set in on foggy mornings? "Don't let us now have to put up with delay!" The commission men want stuff now at 12. Mr. Lockwood thought 11 o'clock at Desbrosses was the best time to receive fruit.

The question was asked if there would be any trouble in getting the fruit unloaded. Mr. McMichael stated that the company was now unloading from 60 to 80 cars per night.

A fruit grower thought that perhaps the railroad might not have floats enough to carry over the cars. Mr. McMichael said there were floats enough but perhaps they would not have enough fruit to fill one float. A float will carry from 12 to 16 cars. The time to unload would be from 2 to 3 hours. Mr. McCoy, of the Central Railroad, stated that the floats held from 8 to 14 cars and that the actual time for floating them across the river was 30 or 40 minutes, but the time in the terminal and yards at Weehawken was the big factor.

Someone suggested 10:30 as the most advantageous time for the train to reach New York, and Mr. McMichael made it very plain that the earlier it could reach New York the better. The railroad was willing to start the train earlier but the fruit growers wanted all the time possible to load the fruits.

Less Than Car Lots.

A question was asked as to less than car load lots or overflow. In such a case the party filled in would be charged for the different car load rates. If there were 2 1/2 cars from one station it was possible for the association handling the shipment to pay the car load rates on the two cars and include the rate on the half car at the higher rate, and the two together and reapportion the charge again, so that each shipper pays his share of the higher rate on the half car lot. This would make the charge equal to all for the day, whether their fruit went in the full cars or in the half car.

The charges must be prepaid or guaranteed by some reliable company.

Mr. Vall stated that it would be necessary to have some one at each station to look after the loading of the cars and also at the destination to receive the cars and separate it into loads for the different commission merchants. This will entail an expense. The Hudson River Fruit Exchange proposes to charge a flat rate for freight sufficiently high to cover the expense of handling, the increased charge on short cars and will send a messenger to New York to sort out the shipments and take care of the unloading. Further the association would pay the railroad and the commission men could pay the shipper for his fruit in much the same manner in which it is done at present.

Mr. Velle wanted to know if an eight car float could be unloaded in turn rates. Mr. McMichael said he doubted if it could.

"Does the railroad unload fruit on the pier?" was asked by Mr. Hepworth. Mr. McMichael said the railroad places the fruit on the pier as it is the interest of the railroad to get freight unloaded as quickly as possible so as to make room for other freight.

Question of Return Crates.

A question was asked as to return crates. Mr. McMichael said return crates could be shipped the same as any other freight. A minimum car was 12,000 lbs. at fourth class to Milton at 11 cents per hundred. A fruit grower stated that a car of crates could be shipped by freight one cent cheaper than by boat. It was possible that the association could load a car containing crates for a number of different growers and sorted on reaching their destination at this end.

Mr. Velle thought that the fact that a representative of the association was present at the loading and unloading of the fruit would tend to make more careful handling. Mr. McMichael said that the car was unloaded as a unit and the railroad would endeavor to unload at the suggestion of the agent, that is place fruit for one consignee in one pile, etc. Trucks can drive on the pier and load the fruit.

Since there was no further discussion Mr. Velle stated it was necessary to have a committee appointed at this meeting to act in conjunction with the railroad in settling the details of the matter. Mr. Rownd made a motion that the matter be referred to the executive committee of the Hudson River Fruit Exchange. An amendment was made that two fruit growers outside the exchange be appointed to act on the committee. The amendment was seconded. The amendment was amended to read three outside members. This was seconded and accepted.

The amended motion that the matter be referred to the executive committee with three outside members was carried unanimously. The outside members appointed are: L. Haviland, Highland; Thomas Powers, Middlehope; and C. C. Lockwood of Marlborough. The members of the executive committee of the fruit exchange are:

W. Y. Velle, Marlborough; Edward W. Barnes, Middlehope; Charles A. Weston, F. W. R. Cornell; R. Clark of Milton and J. R. Cornell of Newburgh and A. P. Wilklow of Highland.

Mr. Velle stated that there were many details to be taken care of and be worked out at the office of the exchange with the assistance of Mr. Crowell and Mr. Anderson, manager and assistant of the exchange.

The Ulster County Farm Bureau will assist the work and Manager Hook stated that as a representative of the Bureau he wished to state that the bureau would do all it could in its educational capacity to place the matter before the fruit growers and help make the venture a success.

Will Build Cold Storage Plant.

Mr. Velle stated that the Hudson River Fruit Exchange planned to erect a cold storage plant at Milton. That $15,000 had been pledged by one grower who would take storage for 15,000 barrels. Shares would be issued at $11 each and each dollar invested would entitle the investor to space for one barrel storage. The investor is not required to use the space but in case of a high demand for storage the investor could count on space for one barrel for each dollar. Later storage will cost 40 cents per barrel.

NEW YORK COOKERY SHOW.

Leading Hotel Chefs Will Demonstrate and Give Talks.

The National Food Cookery and Kindred Trades, which this year will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the Societe Culinaire Philanthropique, began its exposition in the Grand Central Palace yesterday and will continue for the balance of the week. The public opening takes place today at 4:30 p. m. The day will be devoted to competitions in culinary art, with the prominent hotel and club chefs competing. On Thursday there will be lectures on food preparation by prominent chefs. The Vacation League will visit the exposition on Thursday. Edouard Panchard, chef of the McAlpin, will address the ladies on "Cooking on a Moderate Income." Friday is Housewives' League Day. Mrs. Lois Pierce-Hughes, hostess of the McAlpin Hotel, will make an address on "The Stranger Within Our Gates." A well known chef will also speak on "How a Butcher Buys Meat." Saturday will be devoted to the awarding of prizes in the confectionery and culinary competitions.

The chefs have taken pains this year to make the affair the most comprehensive and complete in every line. They have been surprised at the amount of interest shown by those interested in food concerns and its preparation in their own homes, and they will make a special feature of supplying the information of this kind useful to the housewife, through the medium of lectures, demonstrations and motion pictures. Originally intended for the members of the culinary profession, the annual exposition of the society has now become a national institution patronized as generously by American housekeepers as by famous chefs.

WHEN SLEUTH MET SLEUTH. New York Men Hunting Clerk Mistaken for Jean Cronos.

An amateur sleuth and the real article staged a comedy of errors on an O. & W. passenger train Saturday afternoon near Luzon, Sullivan county. The amateur, Samuel M. Levy, of 231 West 141st street, New York, wearing a false beard and hunting for a former employee who had skipped with $250. Levy's peculiar actions led the conductor to suspect him of being none other than Jean Cronos, the Chicago poisoner, and Special Officer George H. Hadden of Middletown made the capture he hoped would make him famous. Levy was released by a justice of the peace after being ordered to lay aside the beard. As one can't be a detective without a set of false whiskers, Levy decided to give up his chase and return to New York.

EVERYBODY KNOWS TRADE-MARK.

The "Bull" is Best Known Animal in America.

The enormous growth of advertising in recent years has made the trade mark one of the most familiar features of daily life. There are many of these, but the one which the average man will recall most quickly is the rampant bull which adorns the package and the advertising of "Bull" Durham smoking tobacco. He is, no doubt, the best known animal in America.

A great deal of interesting tobacco history has been made since the Durham bull first made his appearance. Years ago he stood for the most popular pipe tobacco in the world, but the vast army of "roll your own" cigarette smokers has claimed the bull for its own.

Humming Birds This Evening.

This evening "The Humming Birds" will be given in the chapel of the Rondout Presbyterian Church under the auspices of the Ushers' Club of the church. The young men have prepared a fine program and an evening of pleasure is assured those who attend. The musical end of the program has been in charge of M. F. Wygant while the accompanist will be Miss Elsa Hiltbrandt. The men on the ends who will provide the fun of the evening will be Frank Finley, John Rowland, Fred Meeker and Harold Byers. The interloper will be Clarence Rowland and the members of the chorus are LeRoy Hammond, Leslie Stevens, Kenneth Canfield, Alex. Rodie, William Dohnken, Charles Beeres, Don Rodie and Adolph Bell.

The program is as follows: Opening chorus—Entire company. Solo, "Floating Down the Old Green River." Frank Finley Solo, "When I Leave the World Behind." LeRoy Hammond Song, "We'll Have a Jubilee." Fred Meeker Song, "My Croonie Melody." Kenneth Canfield Specialty by the Four Men—Solo, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling." Clarence Rowland Song, "Tulip Time in Holland." No Coupons, No Premiums.

In the comparatively brief time Camel Cigarettes have been on the market they have gained remarkable popularity; they are an expert blend of choice Turkish and choice domestic tobaccos—and the result is the cleverest cigarette that has ever been put on the market.

You so quickly realize the quality of the tobacco and the expert blending in these cigarettes that you do not look for an expert coupon or premiums. And the first few puffs bring to your mind the now famous saying: "No coupons, no premiums, but my, what a cigarette!" Smokers find in Camels a cigarette that meets their best wishes.

Lessons in heating economy

Have you a home that will give you daily and nightly recuperation, so you can return vigorously to your business duties or rise to new ones? Associations of bankers are agreed that the business man or farmer should set aside part of the money he annually borrows and invest it in practical improvements for the home. A sanitary, cozily warmed house is the best insurance that the man is a good risk—that he will succeed.

"The surest loans we make are on radiator heated buildings. They are always so easily rentable and salable."

Bankers, builders, and real estate men all know the increase in property value and stability of investment where AMERICAN Radiators and IDEAL Boilers are installed and therefore gladly loan money to those who wish to make this improvement.

AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

These outfits make property sell or rent quicker and at a profit. Every room in the house is heated with less care-taking than required to run one stove for one room, and millions of dollars have been saved in reduced fuel bills by the users of IDEAL-AMERICAN heating.

A No. 2-22-W IDEAL Boiler and 461 ft. of 3-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $225, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent fitter. This did not include cost of labor, pipes, valves, freight, etc., which are extra and vary according to climatic and other conditions.

The lasting heat that costs the least

The most important question to settle about an old or new building is the heating. IDEAL heating has answered this question for hundreds of thousands of house-owners for over twenty-five years, and as an investment it is permanent and will command a good price even after the owner has enjoyed its comfort and savings for many years.

A little larger first investment over cost of a cheap heating equipment can be quickly overcome by omitting extra inner doors, chimneys, mantle, storm sash, weather strips, etc. You might better increase your borrowing at the bank, for the fuel and other savings that IDEAL heating will give you will make money for you far beyond the bank interest you have to pay.

Send at once for our (free) book "Ideal Heating," which gives most valuable information. Puts you under no obligation to buy.

West Shore Railroad Refuses Shipments Over Central New England and New Haven Lines—Candy Company Sends Goods to Highland as Result.

Embargoes declared upon carload and less than carload lots of freight destined for any points on the New York, New Haven and Hartford of Central New England railroad systems on Tuesday morning, proving considerable embarrassment to Kingston shippers. Such shipments are refused at the West Shore railroad freight house here and include merchandise of every description. Huge accumulations of loaded cars threaten a tie-up of the two New England systems named, and it is for this cause that the new order was issued, according to the New Haven railroad.

While the order affects shipments from the Kingston freight house, it was stated that the Central New England railroad was accepting shipments from Rhinecliff for certain points on its lines and, hence, there is a bit of business being done by trucking lines across the ice on the Hudson today.

A shipment of 25 cases of confectionery from the Washington Candy Company was refused at the freight house and was finally taken to Highland in the hope of getting it to Connecticut destinations from Poughkeepsie.

Other cargoes which are being shipped handcarried by the new embargo are the W. G. Browne Company and the Universal Road Machine Company.

The new embargo covers nearly all forms of machinery and building material. While there are no exceptions to the ban on local shipments, the Poughkeepsie offices of the two New England roads have included live stock, foodstuffs, gasoline, perishable freight and news print papers among the exceptions. A similar embargo for goods consigned to points on the Boston and Albany railroad has been in effect some time but has not affected Kingston to any appreciable extent. The New Haven Company says that it has 55,526 freight cars in operation today where 36,000 was the total in use the same day last year, and in spite of this large number the loaded cars have increased 2,000 since February 25. Co-operation of the shippers is asked until the congestion can be cleared.

MRS. GENEVIEVE CLARK THOMSON.

MRS. CLARK THOMSON URGES MADE IN AMERICA COLORS FOR WOMEN AS ENGLAND RELEASES $5,000,000 WORTH OF GERMAN DYES.

Washington, March 1—Simultaneously with the call sent out by Mrs. James M. Thompson, daughter of Speaker Champ Clark, to 100,000 American women to wear "simple" colors as much as possible during the ensuing spring and summer, comes the news from England that the British Government has released $5,000,000 worth of dye stuffs consigned to American manufacturers. If Germany can be persuaded to raise the embargo on dye-stuffs, the American dyers will soon have in their hands sufficient colorings to last through the season.

Mrs. Thompson is the chairman of the executive committee of the Woman's National Made-in-the U. S. A. League. Tariff legislation to encourage and protect the establishment of an extensive color dye industry in the United States is being considered by the House Ways and Means Committee. The committee will frame a tentative measure to protect the new industry from destructive competition by foreign tar producers, particularly the German coal tar dye monopoly. After the president approves the dye stuff bill, the measure will be incorporated by the Ways and Means Committee in a general tariff bill. This measure, in addition to the dye-stuff tariff, will provide general "anti-dumping" clause to protect American manufacturers from price-cutting campaigns by foreign producers, and legislation creating the tariff commission for which the President has asked.

Odd Tobacco Pipe Borer.

Travelers among the Sioux Indians are much impressed with the perfect smoothness of the bore in their pipe stems. Without the use of a tool of any kind they make a perfect bore in the twigs of ash trees, which they use for musical instruments and for pipes. To accomplish this end they employ the larvae of a butterfly which inhabits the ash tree. The Indians remove the pith for about three inches from the stick they wish bored. Into this cavity they place one of the larvae of a brown butterfly, which gradually eats its way down through the pith until the bore is completed. A little heat applied to the wood expedites the work of the larvae. The Indians consider both the tube made in this way and the larvae as sacred as their idols.—Popular Science Monthly.

Students of economy might well take a leaf out of the book of Mme. Jerome Bonaparte, whom Mrs. Stirling, in her biography, describes as saving money over her pocket handkerchiefs. A Social Hireling

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

A young man whose clothes were of fine texture, of an English cut and beginning to show signs of long wear stepped into an office on an upper floor of a skyscraper on Fifth avenue, New York, and approached a sleek, gentleman like man sitting at a rosewood desk.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the man who entered, with a smooth English accent. "I have understood that you desire persons for social purposes."

"H'm! I sometimes have occasion to recommend a young man to fill a—"

"Do you dance?"

"I do."

"There is also need for dinner substitutes."

"Beg pardon?"

"You are not familiar with New York society methods?"

"I have recently come from London, where I have had the entrée to the smart set."

"Very good. We have here a number of families who have recently become enormously rich and who are desirous of getting into society. We call them social climbers. They must begin by inviting the few persons in the swim they can get to their functions, filling up with those who are not in the swim, gradually increasing the number of the former and diminishing the latter. It is essential that the flatterers should be familiar with the customs of swifdom. I perceive from your manner that you will make an excellent filler."

"What are your terms?"

"In the beginning I can pay you $5 for a dancing party and $25 for a dinner."

"Why is the greater work paid the lesser price?"

"Because the dancer uses his heels and need not betray himself by saying anything. The dinner must talk."

"I see. One must have intellect to be a dinner companion."

"Not at all. He must be able to talk well out nothing. Can you do that?"

"I can only assure you that I have been in society all my life. Only being out of funds induces me to offer my services for what you call a filler."

"Very good. Mrs. Barnaby Ritz gives a dinner tonight and needs several young men. The number has been made up with one exception. Have you evening dress?"

"My evening dress is all I have. It is in fair condition."

"I presume you will need a little something for carriage and other trifles."

"I have nothing but my own clothes."

"But, my dear sir, you don't know me. What is to prevent my pocketing this money and not seeing you again?"

"Excuse me for contradicting you. I do know you. What you say is by no means complimentary to my discernment. I know a gentleman when I see him and would know him if he were in the garb of a huckster."

"Thank you very much."

The agent, Mr. Pfeiffer Short, took the man's name and address, the name given being Ralph Plummer.

"Assured?" said Mr. Short dryly.

"As you like," was the response.

When Mr. Plummer appeared at Mrs. Ritz's—he was directed to be on hand in time to be looked over—she brought a forgerette to bear on him and after asking him a few questions said:

"My most blue-blooded guest for the evening is Miss De Witt. She is a descendant of John De Witt, a great something or other of Holland. I don't mind telling you that I secured her because my son saved her from being run over by an auto. You are the only man who is to dine here today who will be up to her high stepping gait. Do what you can to entertain her. I'll send you something substantial tomorrow."

Mr. Plummer was shown into a room where the guests were assembled. They were not all unrefined, and Miss De Witt was evidently high bred. But she was not as Mrs. Ritz had described her, being unassuming and lady-like. Though she was not among persons of her own set, she did not indicate by her manner that she was out of place. When her dinner companion was introduced to her she looked at him with an expression that he could not well define. It might have been curiosity; it might have been surprise.

"Mr. Plummer, did you say, Mrs. Ritz?"

"Yes. This is Mr. Plummer, an old friend of ours."

The filler passed one of the pleasantest evenings of his life, feeling from the first in rapport with his companion. Mrs. Ritz conducted herself quite well, considering that her husband had started his career as a foundryman, but several of her guests made serious breaks. At such times Miss De Witt either went on with what she was saying to Mr. Plummer or listened attentively to what he said to her altogether ignoring the breach. Plummer was too much engrossed with her to even know that a case of ill breeding had occurred.

When the hour for departure came Miss De Witt did not wait for Mr. Plummer to ask permission to call upon her. It is well she did not, for he would not have made the request. He was, however, much pleased when she said, "Come and see me."

Though he felt that had she known that he was a filler she would certainly not have done so. As he was passing out Mrs. Ritz drew him aside and slipped a bit of paper into his hand, saying that he had done so well that she would not wait to send it to him. He glanced at it and handed it back to her.

"Excuse me, Mrs. Ritz," he said,

"But Mr. Short has settled with me."

"But this is extra."

Plummer winced. What! Accept a tip for entertaining his dinner companion? Poverty had brought him to hiring himself out for a social purpose, but to be paid for the pleasure Miss De Witt had given him—this was more than he could bear. Belling his hat and coat, he bolted for the door.

He had no idea of accepting Miss De Witt's invitation. Being a gentleman, he felt that to do so while he was thus making his living would be an outrage. He had no choice but to proceed, for the present, in the only occupation that was open to him and must use it or starve. Mr. Short gave him all the employment he would accept, which was barely enough to keep body and soul together. He did not meet Miss De Witt again at any of the places he danced or dined, for she did not know the persons who gave the entertainments.

But one morning he received a valuable invitation—not a paid one—to a musicale given by a Mrs. Yearley. Who Mrs. Yearley was or why she had invited him he did not know. Curiosity led him to accept. What was his surprise, after greeting the hostess, to be led up to Miss De Witt.

"You two have met before, I believe," said Mrs. Yearley. "I leave him with you, Catherine; see that he is properly taken care of."

"Am I indebted to you for this invitation?" he asked.

"I am indebted to my friend Mrs. Yearley for inviting you. But you don't deserve it. You have been very rude to me."

"In what way?"

"You have paid no attention to my request that you should call on me."

Plummer hesitated in replying to this, finally saying that it would not be proper for him to accept an invitation to call upon a lady into whose social circle he had no entrée.

"Your excuse is not accepted."

"Very well; I will do myself the honor to call very soon."

"I shall expect you."

"I must impose one condition."

"What is it?"

"That you ask for no more invitations for me."

"Certainly," replied the lady "since you do not wish it."

She asked for no reason, which somewhat puzzled Mr. Plummer. Did she know that he had been present at Mrs. Ritz's as a filler? He thought not. Those who hired such persons were not likely to tell of their action.

He made the call and continued his acquaintance with Miss De Witt. One day a letter was handed to him by a young man, who said to him:

"Are you Mr. Ralph Plummer?"

"I am."

"I am from Elkins & Elkins, attorneys. They have been hunting you for some time."

Plummer tore off the envelope and uncovered another addressed to Sir Ralph Trevor.

"Is that you?" asked the lawyer's clerk.

Plummer's only reply was to open the second envelope. A letter, contained in it announced to him that an uncle in England had one cunning and he was heir to his title.

Plummer, or, rather, Sir Ralph Trevor, leaving the messenger to take care of himself, went out, called a cab and directed the driver to take him to Miss De Witt's home.

"I have come," he said to her, "to make a confession. Poverty and an unwillingness to be dependent on those in England who—"

"Call it rather pride."

"Call it what you like, my position in America has been contemptible. But there has been a change. I am going to tell you who I really am."

"There is no need to tell me that. You are a gentleman, for I once met you in London society."

"You met me?"

"For only a moment. I don't wonder that you have not remembered me."

"Why have you not told me this?"

"Because you seemed to prefer to remain incognito."

"And you know how I have been keeping myself from starvation here?"

Miss De Witt prevaricated. She knew, for Mrs. Ritz had told her. But she wished to make it easy for him. She said that was none of her affair. He informed her that he was an orphan; that his uncle had led him to suppose that he would be his heir to his fortune, as well as to his title, and had thereupon undertaken to direct his every action. The young man had rebelled and gone away. Death had brought a great change and he was going back to England.

Among the American born ladies prominent in English society is Lady Trevor, who was Miss De Witt of New York. When she comes to America she comes alone. Her husband does not relish being reminded of the period when he was a social hireling.

But in this Sir Ralph is oversensitive. In America there are no titles. Consequently Americans—that is, the social climbers—place very high value upon them. It would not matter among such a title were smothered all over; it would still be coveted. Armas quartered with prison stripes are still prized, and the social climber would prefer any bar sinister to no arms at all. It is quite likely that if Sir Ralph returned to the scene of his operations as a social filler the fact that he was capable of being a filler would redound to his credit.

Cutting.

A Scotch lawyer was well reproved when, seated by a lady fully aware of her own plain looks, having bowed to his hostess in giving the toast, "Honored Men and Bonnie Ladies," he rejoined, raising her own glass, "We may both drink that toast, since it refers to neither of us."

Fully Occupied.

"Beauty is only skin deep."

"I consider that a wise provision of nature."

"Why so?"

"With that limitation the girls are kept busy enough."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mansion House Squabble Resulted in No Great Changes.

Mrs. Holmes and her mother, Mrs. Shuffe, have removed from the Mansion House and taken up their residence in Rhinecliff, where they will remain until they have an opportunity to dispose of their property there, when they will remove to New York city, where they expect to reside permanently. Mr. Holmes having taken a position on a United Fruit Company steamer. They desire to express their appreciation to the friends in this city for many acts of kindness and their departure will be regretted by many. Under the management of Mr. Holmes the Mansion House was conducted in a high class manner, but patronage was not sufficient to make it a paying proposition. The unpleasantness noted in The Freeman on Tuesday seems to have been greatly exaggerated, as Mrs. Shuffe used no weapon and the bartender had the swollen eye he was exhibiting for several days prior to the encounter.

Borho, the bartender who related the story that was printed in The Freeman Tuesday evening, admitted today that he was not hit with a stick and stated not only that he did not receive a black eye but that he did not have a black eye at all and that he had not been hit in the eye during the conflict, or hit with anything except a woman's fist. He told a story on Tuesday that was entirely different.

SWEENEY OF THE FOREIGN LEGION GOING BACK TO FIGHT FOR FRANCE.

New York, Feb. 29.—It is not very often that a man has the experience of having a bullet pierce his lung and of still being ready to resume his position in the battle line.

Not the least deterred by such an experience, Charles Sweeney, the young American, who for thirteen months fought in the French trenches, will return to France, anxious to hear cannon and rifle.

Sweeney was one of the first of the many Americans to join the Foreign Legion when the war began. He was the only American advanced from the ranks, and today he wears on the lapel of his coat a small red ribbon—the Legion of Honor—the highest honor bestowed by the French.

Lieutenant Sweeney received his injury in the Champagne battle on September 28. For four months he was in the hospital hovering between life and death. He is now on a three months' furlough, and expects to return to the trenches on May 1.

Lieutenant Sweeney is a graduate of West Point and has spent much of his time abroad. He is married to a Belgian girl. His wife and children are now in Paris.

Planting Seeds in the Sky

Mr. Manufacturer, if you were starting out to plant seeds you would not shoot them skywards hoping a few would light on the ground?

Of course not!

You would go direct to the ploughed fields and sow them carefully. Catch the advertising thought? It's a very important one.

The newspaper carries the message direct to the ploughed field.

It reaches consumers and dealers immediately and response is rapid.

Manufacturers seeking the way to the ploughed field of profit are invited to write to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers' Association, World Building, New York.

By La Roca-Rousseau.

Quaint and picturesque are the lines and effect of this hat, which is shown in leghorn straw with narrow brim in front and turned up abruptly in back. The color scheme is a charming combination of rose and French blue, the latter being a wide grosgrain ribbon which is arranged around the crown and disappears under an immense cluster of moss.

NOTABLE MEETING OF RAILROAD MEN

Transportation Dinner of Chamber to be Unique Affair—Acceptances Received From Rail and Water Companies Serving Kingston.

Arrangements for the Transportation Dinner to be tendered by the Chamber of Commerce next Monday night at the Hotel Stuyvesant to representatives of every railroad and transportation line now serving Kingston are practically completed and a notable gathering of railroad men is indicated by the number of acceptances thus far received. Steamship officials are also to be in attendance together with local business men, manufacturers and city officials. The dinner will be served at 8 o'clock and an informal reception to the guests will precede it.

Among the New York Central officials who have already accepted invitations are: Division Freight Agent Alan McMichael of New York, Traveling Freight Agent Harry J. Parker of New York, Division Superintendent W. K. McCoy of Weehawken, Assistant General Passenger Agent Clarence C. Howard of New York, General Agent Walter S. Randolph of Albany. This delegation will represent the main line of the New York Central Lines as well as the West Shore and Wallkill Valley railroads.

General Passenger Agent Fred B. Hibbard and his assistant, Captain White of New York, will represent the Hudson River Day Line while Herbert R. Odell of Newburgh, general manager of the Central Hudson Steamboat Line, has also accepted an invitation to be present.

Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck, representing the Sleightsburgh ferry, and County Superintendent of Highways James P. Loughran, highway transportation, will also be at the speakers' table.

Representatives of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad Company, the Cornell Steamboat Company and the Rhinebeck ferry will be in attendance as will H. B. Page, of Worcester, Mass., vice-president of the Kingston Consolidated Railway Company. The Ontario and Western railroad will also have representatives present.

It is the intention to have the dinner informal in character and the various speakers will be limited to five minute speeches on various transportation problems affecting Kingston. All business men of the city and members of the Chamber of Commerce are urged to attend and the cost to them will be $1 per plate.

The dinner will be served under the auspices of the Social and Transportation Committees of the Chamber and it is believed to mark the first effort of the kind to bring together shippers and railroad men on a get-together basis which may be productive of mutual benefit.

Body Unidentified.

After a vain search for the relatives of the unknown hobo, who was shot and killed several days ago by Charles Guadagnolo in his saloon at Saugerties, Coroner E. A. Kelly this morning buried the body in Potter's Field at the City Home. Shortly after the shooting another hobo called at Coroner Kelly's undertaking parlors on West Union street and identified the dead man as one Baxter from Newark, N. J. The police of that city were communicated with by the coroner and every effort made to locate the supposed Baxter's relatives, but without success. Guadagnolo, who shot the hobo, is out under $5,000 bail.

THEY SAY.

The other day a resident of Kingston who was transacting some business with a former resident was asked to send some references and complied by sending the names of a number of prominent men of the city. The former resident upon receipt of the list wrote in reply that it was pleasing to him to notice the names of so many old friends with the various titles they had acquired since boyhood, and said that they must have changed their tactics since he had gone to school with them. He related an incident of how one of the now prominent men when a boy had placed an over ripe egg in another boy's pocket while in school. In a short time there was an odor that aroused the instinct of the teacher and the boy was excused without any argument. The local man is now wondering which one of the prominent men was meant.

OF THIS 30 DAYS' PROSPERITY CASH OFFER.

For every 5 cents worth of collars and shirts you send with your family wash we will deduct each 5 cents worth from the cost of the family wash. KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 1, 1916.

In the place of the bread that mother used to make there are, and have been, substitutes without end and some of which mother herself might have pronounced better than occasional batches of the home-baked product. Modern bakeries have improved, or rather, departed from, the established recipes of the home kitchen and, in their aims for a greater number of loaves from a barrel of flour and a lighter product, they have not been so particular about the mineral element entering into the formulas used. Poisonous chemicals have entered into the compositions, not to a harmful extent, it is urged, but still sufficient to warrant widespread criticism. The legislature now proposes to put its fingers into the dough and prescribe what food elements shall enter into the composition of bread and proscribe anything of a poisonous nature. This is a legitimate field for legislative interference. Quality should never be sacrificed in the manufacture of foodstuffs and the purchasing public is entitled to protection from injurious substances in bread.

Even in the advertising game Great Britain is showing that there are no slackers among her artists and publicity experts. The connection between advertising and war's alarms may not be apparent to the average reader until he stops to consider the fact that advertising actually raised an army for the United Kingdom. Hedley Francis LeBas is the advertising man who helped to do it and in the March number of the American Magazine there is an interesting story of how he did it—at 57 per cent of the former cost of getting recruits. LeBas made his advertisements for soldiers interesting, just as he would have done for purchasers of clothing, food, soap or tobacco, and did the same with the advertising for the three billion dollar loan, which was over-subscribed at the end of two weeks. This is a signal instance of the value of advertising. It may be the inspiration for Henry Ford's proposed advertising campaign for peace. Against the Ford effort the defense and security leagues will conduct an equally vigorous fight on the same fields—the pages of the daily newspapers of the United States. The fruits of this bloodless battle will be awaited with interest by advertisers and readers of advertising the country over.

Newspaper editorials on Henry James are as long in proportion as the sentences which made his style difficult. In the main, the comment is kind, far kinder in fact than was James himself in his view of the newspapers which he pronounced "black eruptions in type" and likened to a "mighty maniac breaking loose." It is the same with his native country from which James expatriated himself. While never in sympathy with America, as shown in his earlier works, such as Daisy Miller, in which the crudities of his fellow countrymen and women were sharply contrasted with foreign culture, James added much to American literature. His first novels were more simple and in decided contrast to his later work. Perhaps James' bent was due to early environment, brilliant conversation having been a feature in his early family life to which travel in Europe proved an influential sequel. In fiction he was pronounced the most subtle of American novelists and, to some extent, the originator of the modern artistic society novel. His early essays were also stimulating to students of American literature and with his novels showed love of the artistic and intellectually perfect finish, but this country will have to go a long way before any large field of appreciation is inspired for this author and his works. And however future generations may progress to that state, the life and works of Henry James are more a fit subject for discussion among the literati than for any extended editorial review for newspaper readers.

Statistics show that one out of every thirty-eight residents of Ulster county owns an automobile license and that is prima facie evidence of possession of a machine, whether an old style two cycle motor or the twelve-cylinder last word of the most progressive manufacturer. This figure may not stand long either for, judging from the popularity of the coming Kingston Automobile Show, the proportion of non-owners may be still further reduced. No genius has yet figured out the number of invitations to ride that the non-motoring thirty-eight should receive from the more fortunate possessors of cars but it is a safe assertion that automobiles will be more numerous than ever the coming season, especially in this section of the country which offers such wonderful scenery combined with good highways for motor travel. In Orange county the proportion of owners to non-owners is one to twenty-five, while Dutchess is close to that figure with a one to twenty-seven ratio. Some day we suppose it will be ten to one and finally so that every family has its car. In the meantime, it is the marvel of the century to note the rate of increase of owners to say nothing of the constantly ascending price of gasoline.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, March 1.—A very important meeting of the consistory of the Reformed Church will be held Thursday evening after a short prayer service. All members of the consistory are urged to be present.

Mrs. Hattie R. Hotelling of New York city spent the week end with Mrs. Josephine Marsh in Sloatsburg.

Henry E. McKenzie of Broadway went to Syracuse Tuesday to attend the Democratic State Convention as a delegate of the Second Assembly District.

George L. Kivian of Boston, Mass., who has been the guest of his brother, Richard Kivian, on Tilden street, has returned home.

The Dorcas Society of the Reformed Church enjoyed a most delightful sleigh ride to the Red House in Saugerties Monday evening. James H. Rodman's large and commodious sleigh driven by Nelson Povey and Augustus Walker. The following ladies composed the party: The Misses Alvira and Elizabeth Roosa, Helen Elsworth, Elsie C. Lowe, Edna B. Harper and the Mrs. Mary Van Leuven, Lillian Walker, Nellie Bigler, Edith Terwilliger, Elsie Secor, Inez Lampman and Elsie Groves. A hot chicken dinner with accessories was served by Miss Host Neuls and thoroughly enjoyed. The jolly party arrived home at midnight and all joined in praise for their evening's outing. A leap year ride is soon to follow. In fact preparations are under way.

Mr. and Mrs. Alanson H. Short and sons, Alanson W., John Robert and daughter, Eunice Ida, of Main street, enjoyed a sleigh ride to Cottage Hill Sunday and were guests of Mr. Short's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Short.

Episcopal Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in the parlors in Fulton Hall.

Mrs. S. P. Tibbie of Broadway, who has been ill of quinsy, is improving under the care of Dr. G. W. Ross.

The chicken supper prepared and served by the men of the Methodist Church Tuesday evening was a rousing success. Two hundred suppers were served. This is the largest number ever served at one time at an occasion of this kind. The chief, John Lynn, and his able assistant, Robert Clark, and his efficient waiters served the people in a first-class, up-to-date style. A great many people were heard to say that these suppers should be held semi-annually, as the men proved their capabilities in every respect. The entertainment held in the auditorium was something novel and new. The parts were taken by each one in an able manner. Special mention could not be made of any one, as all did equally well. The church was filled with an appreciative audience. Monday evening a very pleasant surprise party was given Miss Mary Neal at her home on Salem street. Games and music was enjoyed by all during the evening. Among those who were the Misses Ella Lapina, Jane Schryver, Jennie Stephenson, Catherine Cole, Florence Haines, Mildred Olsen, Anna Cole, Evelyn Bugg, Margaret Lynn and the Messrs. Glenn Jump, Victor Hotelling, Clarence Freer, George Fowler, Clarence Hyde, Charles Carl, Edward Maines, Joseph Norman, Rankin Lynn, Travis Gillette and Harry Maines. Near midnight dainty refreshments were served. The guests departed in the wee small hours of morning, all declaring Miss Neal a royal entertainer.

The Epworth League and Christian Endeavor Societies intend to give a full evening's play in the near future. The title of the play is "The Old Oaken Bucket" and will include the best local talent obtainable. This play is well known and contains the sentiment of the "Old Homestead." The date will be announced later.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.
March 1, 1896.—City took possession of water works.
Nineteen new members received at communion service at Church of Comforter, and fifteen at Fair Street Reformed Church.
Rondout creek overflowed its banks doing much damage; stores along Ferry street flooded.

March 1, 1906.—Wiltwreck Chapter, D. A. R. decided to buy Tappan house at Crown and Green streets. Old Homestead Club held banquet at Mansion House.

The Norwich broke channel through ice between Rondout and Poughkeepsie.
Mrs. Jacob Feltz committed suicide in Brooklyn.

Cold Comfort.
Modest Amerson (showing his latest painting)—I'm sure, Miss Ethel, you think I'm still some little way from being an artist. Fair Critic (anxious to say the polite thing)—Oh, no. Very far from it. I assure you.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"What is the air of the desert, anyhow?" "I suppose it is 'The Camels are Coming.'"—Baltimore American.

Belle—"Yes; Dolly and her husband have separated." Marie—"Too bad, really! Cannot their enemies bring them together again?"—Puck.

"He posed as a railroad street-car." "Well, was he a fake?" "Not exactly. He presides over the information bureau at the Union Station."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Polly—"He doesn't know anything about the little anecdotes of paying attention to a girl." Dolly—"Why, I saw him using your shoe-string!" Polly—"Yes; but he tied it in a double knot so it couldn't come untied again."—Judge.

Mrs. Parvnu—"John, that Mrs. Kowler who was just here said she had been having a bad attack of ongwee. What's that?" Parvnu—"Something catchin', perhaps. Why don't you look it up in the dictionary, ary?" Mrs. P.—"I did. I went through all the O's, but can't find no such word."—Boston Transcript.

"Do you think moving pictures ought to be censored?" "I should say not," replied Broncho Bob. "It 'ud add a heap to the peace an' quiet of Crimson Gulch if our citizens could be persuaded to sit quiet, lookin' at scenes of violence, instead of gettin' out an' shootin' up the place on their own account."—Washington Star.

Keeping It Dark.

All the passengers in the railway carriage, with one exception, wore some form of war badge. A stranger only was undecorated. A fussy badge-wearer remarked:

"I see, sir, that you are the only one not engaged in some form of war work."

"I prefer to be quite unostentatious about what I do."

"What is your war work?" continued the inquisitive one.

"Sir, I am a German spy; but I do not care to make my occupation too public."—Manchester Guardian.

In the Sere and Yellow.

"I am getting old," confessed Uncle Pester. "Age is creeping on me. I notice the signs more and more frequently. For instance, the other day, when the circus was here

"Why, you went to it!"

"Oh, yes! I went, but a got kind of tired of the hard seats before the big show was over and didn't stay for the concert at all."—Kansas City Star.

Why Willie Was Disappointed.

Willie, at a party given by his sister, was allowed to participate in the snapdragon game, and saw amid a band of beautiful girls of 19 or so.

The lights went out, the usual grabbing for favors began, and then, when the lights went up again, Willie was crying bitterly.

"What's the matter, Willie? Didn't you get anything?" a lady asked.

"No," sobbed Willie, spitefully. "As soon as it got dark that man with the brown whiskers—boo-hoo! he grabbed me hands and didn't stop—hop-oo!"—he didn't stop kissing them till the lights went up again!"—Tit-Bits.

The Average Man.

William Dean Howells was talking in Boston about the classics. "Nobody reads the classics," he said. "The average man knows just about as much of the classics as the squire knew of Shakespeare."

"A school teacher said to the squire:

"'Funny thing happened at school today. I asked the boys who wrote 'Hamlet,' and a little fellow put up his hand and squeaked: 'Teacher, it wasn't me.'"

"The school teacher paused and smiled. The squire looked at him, and then gave a loud interrogative laugh.

"'Haw, haw, haw! And I suppose the little rascal had done it after all!' he shouted."—New York World.

Old Fashioned Carnival at St. Peter's School Hall.

The members and patrons of St. Peter's will be pleased to hear that the pre-lenten season will close with a grand carnival social on Monday evening, March 6. This carnival will have all that is good in a masquerade without the abuse. You are invited to come dressed in old-fashioned, fancy and comical dress. Prizes will be awarded to those who excel in their particular style of costume. This carnival will be an entertainment in itself inasmuch as we'll be pleased to see those we know dressed in styles and costumes that are odd and both old-fashioned and comical. Also it will afford great amusement to see all the old time dances enjoyed. Any dance, whether old-fashioned or modern, will be played by popular demand. Dancing will be enjoyed from 8 p. m. Music will be furnished by St. Peter's orchestra, under direction of Prof. J. Schwalbach. Tickets will include refreshments. There will also be prize bowling and card games, which will be at the disposal of those who so desire.

KOJI YAMADA'S CAREER

Abandoned Course at Heidelberg University in Germany.

Famous Japanese Billiard Player Lured to Game by Chance—Added Much Impetus to Gentleman's Sport in His Country.

Forsaking what promised to be a brilliant career as a surgeon to become a billiard champion is the story of Koji Yamada, the Jap, who is a member of the Champion Billiard Players' league.

Yamada's father is classed among the most prosperous and progressive citizens of Japan. He was ambitious for a distinguished career for his son, and desired him to have the best advantages of education which the world could offer. With this in view, it was decided that Koji should attend the University of Heidelberg, Germany, and prepare himself for the practice of surgery.

Koji was not only willing but enthusiastic, and for a time was one of the most promising of the young students at the German university. It was merely by accident that Koji found out that he would be more successful as a billiard player than as a surgeon.

From the first he not only showed remarkable skill as a billiard player, but became so fascinated with the game that he spent more time at the Students' club billiard hall than he did at the lecture room.

When Koji returned home he failed to bring a diploma from Heidelberg, but he did bring with him the billiard championship of Germany. This fact had much to do with adding an impetus to the game in Japan, and before coming to America Koji had accomplished the easy task of annexing the championship of his own country and the somewhat more difficult task of renewing the confidence of a father in a son who had gone contrary to the wishes of the father. Now Koji is even a bigger man in Japan than if he had pursued his studies and returned home with his diploma.

Since coming to this country he played a sensational game. Perhaps the best match in which he has appeared was the one early in the summer with Willie Hoppe in New York. The champion was given the hardest battle of his career, and the Jap lost in a 14-1 match by only six points. The most wonderful thing about Yamada is that his game has constantly improved, and his skill will be watched with much interest when he appears in the coming championship games.

WORLD SERIES ON THE COAST

Plan to Have Champion Football Team of West to Play With Leading Team From the East.

Officials of the tournament of roses, a festival held each year at Pasadena, Cal., plan an annual world series in football with the champion team of the West playing the champion of the East.

On New Year's day, Washington State, representing the West, played Brown university, representing the East, and the affair was a big success. Washington beat Brown, 14 to 0.

Next year the game will be offered the eastern team winning the championship. A contest of the kind planned by the Pasadena men will be the biggest thing ever attempted for settlement of football supremacy.

Baseball in the Orient.

The recent matches of the Chicago university baseball team with that of the Waseda university established a new record for attendance for sporting matches in Japan. The previous record was 12,000 established when the Chicago team on its visit five years ago met Keio university for the second time. The crowd at the Waseda ground in recent games was officially stated to have exceeded 50,000, including 2,000 foreigners.

Make Signed Players Known.

In the future baseball owners will be able to announce what players have not been signed, something which could not be done in recent years because of the Federal league being in the field.

Not Quite Symmetrical.

"There are invariably two sides to an argument," remarked the parlor philosopher.

"Which is all the more remarkable when you consider that there is only one end," said the mere man.—Judge.

A FAMOUS VICTORY

By F. A. MITCHEL.

A young man within the German lines in Alsace knocked at the door of a cottage. A girl came to the door, and he asked her if he might be accommodated for the night which was coming on. She called to her mother in the German tongue. The young man knitted his brows. He had expected to find French inmates.

The mother came and spoke to the stranger, speaking French with a German accent. He told her that he was traveling and since there was no other house near either she must admit him or he must bivouac for the night. She consented to admit him.

The young man was about twenty-two years old and handsome as a picture. A winning smile began to play about his lips the moment he spoke to the girl, and his eyes indicated his admiration for her. He said nothing about the terrible war that was going on nor did his hostess or her daughter. Nevertheless he assumed that they sympathized with the German cause. For France's lost province has at least as large a population of Germans as France. As to the young man, he was plainly French.

Now, though these persons did not talk about the war, it was evident that the visitor, being a Frenchman within the German lines, was living with a sword suspended over him. True, the country near about was not occupied by troops except in small bands, but any German soldier meeting a Frenchman there would require him to give an account of himself. At bedtime the stranger took a candle and went to the room that had been assigned him, locked the door after him and went to bed, but not to sleep. There was that on his mind that precluded sleep. Life was on the one hand, death on the other. He was liable to be clutched by death.

The girl about midnight, armed with a pair of pliers, went to the guest's door and, feeling with her implement for the end of the key, finally succeeded in turning it. Opening the door, she stole into the guest's room and to a chair beside the bed on which he had put his clothes. She was about to withdraw them when she felt a hand on her wrist.

"Let me go," she said in a low voice. "Certainly," said the visitor. "You have doubtless made a mistake in the room."

He released her, and she withdrew. He knew well what her object had been in trying to take his clothes. She suspected he was a spy and that in his pockets would be found papers containing information he was taking to the entente allies.

In the morning when he came down to breakfast and bade the girl good morning his face wore that same winning smile. She did not respond, evidently struggling herself against him. "You started on your journey she said, on her hat and coat and gloves. "I am going with you," she said.

"I am delighted."

"You are a spy, and I intend to turn you over to the first German officer we meet."

"Oh, no, you won't!"

"Why not?"

"Because they would stand me up and shoot me."

"I have considered all that."

"But when it comes to seeing me shot down you will regret what you have done."

All this the Frenchman said with that same irresistible smile on his lips.

"Give me the papers you are bearing and you may go free for all me."

"It is beyond your power to free me."

"Why so?"

"You have made a prisoner of my heart, and my heart will not be released."

It was evident that the shot had hit. The girl was winged. But she was not ready to surrender.

"My feelings may drive me one way, but my duty is driving me another. I am capable of sacrificing my feelings to my duty."

"Then do so."

The only weapon he carried was a revolver. Taking it from its holster at his hip he tossed it to her. It fell at her feet. He folded his arms and stood looking at her with that smile which was having the same effect upon her that the eye of a serpent would have on a bird.

"Do your duty to your fatherland. The papers you wish are on my person, but you shall not have them without first killing me."

She was not yet conquered. Taking up the weapon she cocked it, advanced to within a few feet of him, put the muzzle against his breast and said:

"Give me the papers or I will sacrifice you to my duty."

"I love you," was his only response.

"Once more, give me the papers."

"Once more, I love you."

They stood, the eyes of each fixed on those of the other. The battle waxed hot, but not with weapons of death. It was a fight of love against duty. Without that smile duty might have won.

Presently he saw victory for himself, defeat for her. Disregarding the weapon pressed against his heart he extended his arms, her hand sank slowly, he encircled her, drew her to him and kissed her.

When he went his way with his papers she returned to the house. Her sense of duty had given place to an all absorbing love.

A Literal Fall.

"I hear the newly weds had a falling out yesterday."

"So soon? What was it about?"

"About the turn in the road yonder. Their rear tire blew up."—Baltimore American.

Badly Balanced.

KINGSTON OPERA HOUSE--TODAY--"THE STRANGE CASE OF MARY PAGE"

Henry Walthal, the Hero

Did Mary Page murder the man she hated?

"I Don't remember. Perhaps I did," she sobs.

No!" Cries Philip Langdon, her sweetheart, and leaps to her defence.

GREATER THAN A KING.

The Old Mississippi River Pilot Was a Law Unto Himself.

In that early day to be a pilot was to be "greater than a king." The Mississippi river pilot was a law unto himself—there was none above him. His direction of the boat was absolute; he could start or lay up when he chose; he could pass a landing regardless of business there, consulting nobody, not even the captain; he could take the boat into what seemed certain destruction, if he had that mind, and the captain was obliged to stand by, helpless and silent, for the law was with the pilot in everything.

Furthermore, the pilot was a gentleman. His work was clean and physically light. It ended the instant the boat was tied to the landing and did not begin again until it was ready to back into the stream; also for those days his salary was princely—the vice president of the United States did not receive more. As for prestige, the Mississippi pilot, perched high in his glass inclosure, fashionably dressed and commanding all below him, was the most conspicuous and showy, the most observed and envied creature in the world.

No wonder Sam Clemens, with his love of the river and his boyish fondness for honors, should aspire to that stately rank. Even at twenty-one he was still just a boy—as indeed he was till his death—and we may imagine how elated he was, starting up the great river as a real apprentice pilot who in a year or two would stand at the wheel, as his chief was now standing, a monarch with a splendid income and all the great river packed away in his head.—Albert Bigelow Paine in St. Nicholas.

HUNGRY ALL THE TIME.

In Other Ways, Too, the Earthworm Is a Curious Creature.

Midnight is the favorite play hour for earthworms. To catch a glimpse of them in the daytime you'll have to dig in the earth, which is their home, or watch for them after a heavy rain, when they can be found on top of the ground. But go out any warm night with a lantern, lie close to the ground on a lawn or terrace, and you'll probably see them in abundance.

Probably you've regarded the earthworm merely as a good fish bait and have never taken the trouble to learn his habits. When he's prowling around at night he's usually enjoying a feast on decaying leaves, grasses or animal matter. Before daylight he's back in the ground, burrowing his way in search of more food. His alimentary canal extends from one tip of his body to the other, so it's little wonder he's always hungry.

He has neither ears nor eyes, yet he's sensitive to light, and he knows when night comes just as other creatures with eyes. Another interesting fact is his method of laying eggs. He grows a band around his body like a belt, in which he deposits the eggs. Then he gradually works his way through this belt until he slips it off, when it closes up and forms a capsule to protect the eggs until they are hatched.

Vegetable growers sometimes regard the earthworm as a nuisance. They should be thankful, however, that those of North America are not so large as those in South Africa, where there are earthworms four and five feet long and as thick as a man's finger.—Philadelphia North American.

How Plants Remain Upright.

If a flowerpot is laid on its side the stalk of the plant growing in it gradually curves upward until it resumes the vertical position. This is called geotropic curvature, and the question is by what means the plant is stimulated to change its direction of growth. One theory avers that movable starch grains in the plant cells fall to the lower side as the position is changed and by their pressure influence the mechanism of growth.

The Ink That Homer Used.

Ink of various hues was used by the ancient Romans, that of a purple tint being considered the exclusive fluid for the execution of all royal writings, as it was distinctively the royal color. It is said that Homer's works were written in letters of gold on a roll 120 feet in length, formed of the intestines of serpents, but we are left in ignorance as to the method of preparing this ink.

A witty Frenchman wrote at the commencement of this century a very interesting and amusing book bearing the title, "Les Agrements et les Chagrins des Mariages." In this work the first four pages are devoted to the "agrements" (joys) and the remaining 350 to the "chagrins" (sorrows).

MORE ABOUT OUR BUSY FACTORIES

So promising is the business at the Millen Aikenhead factory on Railroad avenue that the company intends to add to the building during the year if enough operators can be secured in that time. The scarcity of help seems to be the only drawback at all the shirt factories in Kingston; there are orders enough for the output but labor is needed. There are now 100 employees at the Millen Aikenhead factory—90 girls and 10 men, working at full time, of course.

The newest improved high-speed machines are being installed at intervals, gradually replacing the old machines. At least 20 more girls could be employed in the factory without overcrowding and the company is scouring the county for help.

The Millen Aikenhead Company has a main office in New York city and factories in this city, Cobleskill, and Middletown, all of the same size. Night robes, pajamas, and shirts are the products of the factories and Sans Pareil the brand of the goods. From the factory here the output is shipped direct to customers so that the condition of business in the factories is a good indication of the business elsewhere. The salesmen sending their orders to the factory. The company is planning to increase in all three factories.

The local factory has been here for the long time of 30 years. The last period of dullness at the factory was felt last July when the time was slackened a bit on account of the general dull trade conditions through the country. In August the business found its bearings and has been very busy ever since. The Millen Aikenhead Company was formerly owned by partners but has recently been incorporated, the partners retiring from business. C. A. Baltz, the present manager has held the office for the past 7 years.

Charchian Factory Thrives.

In Field Court is another thriving factory; that of the Charchian Shirt Company, where 70 are employed. They all operate machines and if there was room and the help was at hand, 100 more girls could find occupation here, according to the statement of the manager. He said that there were enough orders to insure work for 100 girls for a period of a year to fill the orders which have now accumulated. Unlike the Millen Aikenhead factory, the Charchian factory does work by contract, only stitching being done in the Kingston establishment. The raw material is cut in New York and sent to Kingston where the stitching is done. It is again shipped to New York for the laundering, which is performed in the factory of F. Jacobson and Sons. If the 100 additional stitchers were secured, a laundry could be added to the factory and thereby bring 80 more employees. The Charchian factory has been in operation in Kingston for six years.

65 Employed at Pants Factory.

In a loft above the Kingston Foundry on Prince street is the pants factory of the Lyons-Koffer-Lieberman Company with main office in New York city. The pay roll consists of 40 girls and 15 men, all of whom are busy and working at full time. Additional help is a need at this factory, another proof of the boom which has struck us. The company has now been here three years.

100 Girls Wanted at Columbia Factory.

The Columbia Shirt factory is one of the biggest in Kingston and although the number of employees could not be learned, it was stated at the factory that the company guarantees a year's work for between 100 and 150 girls extra, if they can be obtained. This statement is self-explanatory of the conditions of this company's business and indicates that one of the most prosperous years is anticipated. The famous Columbia shirts are made completely here and shipped to New York city where they are distributed through the sales office of the company.

ARAB HORSES HERALDED AS NATION'S BEST CAVALRY POSSIBILITY.

Now that "Preparedness" has become one of the watchwords of American national life, the cavalry arm of our land defenses is coming in for a great deal of attention. It has suddenly been discovered that the unprecedented demand for horses on the part of all the warring European nations has greatly depleted the available American stock of cavalry mounts. One group of preparedness propagandists is earnestly urging that the government start immediately to insure a future cavalry of proper size by purchasing its own farms and stocking them for the raising of mounts under government ownership. It is contended that pure Arabian stock can be raised by Uncle Sam as well as any other sort of horse, and that such stock will supply an ideal cavalry strain. That there is considerable weight behind the advocates of Arab horses is evident from the accompanying picture, which is a photograph of Jahil, a pure bred El Kamish Arab stallion, which was born in this country and is one of the undisputed monarchs of Interlaken, the Fall River, Mass., stock farm of Col. Spencer Border.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR FRUIT SHIPPERS

Shippers Meet With Railroad Officials Who Offer Facilities for Shipping by Freight and Eliminating High Express Charges.

A joint meeting of the members of the Hudson River Fruit Exchange and other fruit growers along the West Shore Railroad, and representatives of the New York Central Railroad, was held at Milton on February 24, beginning at 2 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing the shipment of fruit from the Hudson valley to New York city by freight.

W. Y. Velle, president of the Hudson River Fruit Exchange, acted as chairman and requested that someone outside the exchange be elected to act as secretary. R. M. Rownd nominated W. H. Hook, Manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, as secretary. The nomination was seconded and Mr. Hook was unanimously elected secretary.

C. H. Velle called on F. W. Vail to open the subject. Mr. Vail stated that at a meeting called in Poughkeepsie when the fruit growers present met with a representative of the New York Central Railroad, it had been proposed that a fast freight be run from Kingston, stopping at stations and picking up car loads of fruit and then proceed to Weehawken where the cars would be transferred to Desbrosses street, New York city. It requires that fruit be shipped in car load lots and loaded by one shipper who should represent all the shippers in the car, and when it reached New York city a representative should receive it to re-shipment it to the several commission men or other consignees.

Similar Situation as Germantown.

Mr. Velle called on Mr. McMichael of the New York Central who spoke of similar situations. He said: "Germantown had a proposition similar to that on this side of the river each grower was shipping. Independently New York in part car load lots. The New York Central suggested they organize which was done and consequently the fruit growers have been shipping in car load lots and have received the benefit of car load lot rates instead of paying the higher rate which prevails on less than car load lots."

"The railroad must have an organization to deal with. Growers must ship as a unit to receive car load. It is necessary to have one shipper, or in other words the car must be shipped by one shipper to one consignee, or one man or firm. Consequently shippers organize for shipping purposes. The express and boat service has not been satisfactory and a change is needed. The railroad will set off refrigerator cars at different stations. The train will leave Ulster Park at about 3:30 o'clock and Roseton at about 4:30. The cars arriving at Weehawken are transferred to a float and floated to Desbrosses street and delivered on the pier. A delivery to the pier must be arranged so as not to damage the fruit."

Mr. McMichael wished to emphasize the necessity of one shipper to one shipper. Rates he said were subject to official classification.

Rates on Different Fruit.

Berries take the first class. Minimum car loads 17,000 pounds less than carload lots one and one half regular rates. Peaches same as berries except minimum car is 16,000 pounds. Currants same as berries except minimum car is 20,000 pounds. Grapes second class, minimum car 20,000 pounds. Pears and apples fifth class minimum car 24,000 pounds.

Big Difference in Rate.

To illustrate the saving he stated that the first class rate from Milton to Desbrosses street was 21 cents per hundred in car lots by freight while the express rate between the same points was 45 cents per hundred.

Different questions which might arise must be settled by a committee and it was suggested that such be formed. Mr. McMichael said the railroad wanted to deal with a small unit instead of large groups. Mr. Velle wanted an explanation of "one shipper to one consignee." Mr. McMichael read official classification rule No. 5, in order to secure car load rates the car must be shipped from one station on one day by one shipper to one consignee to one destination. In the case of fruit to different commission merchants it can be arranged to have it distributed by the one consignee. Mr. Velle then gave an opportunity for asking questions.

J. H. Clarke asked what about different fruits in one car? In that case the whole car is charged according to the highest rating and it is better to put apples and pears in a separate car. Walter Clarke wanted to know if the time of delivery could be guaranteed. Mr. McMichael said it could not as physical conditions might interfere. The train was due in Weehawken at 9 a. m., but fog, etc., might delay transportation. Mr. Powers wanted to know if it could be unloaded at Weehawken, but Mr. McMichael thought it would not be wise. Mr. Rownd asked if delivery could be assured by 12 o'clock and was answered that it could. The fruit could be unloaded by that time. Mr. Vail, speaking to commission men present, wanted to know at what time express shipments were set in on foggy mornings? "Don't we now have to put up with delay?" The commission men want stuff now at 12. Mr. Lockwood thought 11 o'clock at Desbrosses was the best time to receive fruit.

The question was asked if there would be any trouble in getting the fruit unloaded. Mr. McMichael stated that the company was now unloading from 60 to 80 cars per night.

A fruit grower thought that perhaps the railroad might not have trucks enough to carry over the cars. Mr. McMichael said there were trucks enough but perhaps they would not have enough fruit to fill one boat. A boat will carry from 25 to 30 tons. The time to unload would be from 2 to 3 hours.

Mr. McCay, of the Central Railroad, stated that the boats hold from 8 to 16 cars and that the actual time for unloading them across the river was 30 or 40 minutes, but the time in the terminal and yards at Weehawken was the big factor.

Someone suggested 10:30 as the most advantageous time for the train to reach New York, and Mr. McMichael made it very plain that the earlier it could reach New York the better. The railroad was willing to start the train earlier but the fruit growers wanted all the time possible to load the fruits.

Less Than Car Lots.

A question was asked as to less than car load lots or overloads. In such a case the party filed in would be charged for at less than car load rates. If there were 2 1/2 cars from one station it was possible for the association handling the shipment to pay the car load rates on the two cars and include the rate on the half car at the higher rate, and the two together and re-shipment the charge again, so that each shipper pays his share of the higher rate on the half car lot. This would make the charge equal to all for the day, whether their fruit went in the full car or in the half car.

The charges must be prepaid or guaranteed by some reliable company.

Mr. Vail stated that it would be necessary to have some one at each station to look after the loading of the cars and also at the destination to receive the cars and separate it into loads for the different commission merchants. This will entail an expense. The Hudson River Fruit Exchange proposes to charge a flat rate for freight sufficiently high to cover the expense of handling, the increased charge on short cars and will send a messenger to New York to sort out the shipments and take care of the unloading. Further the association would pay the railroad and the commission men could pay the shipper for his fruit in much the same manner in which it is done at present.

Mr. Velle wanted to know if an eight car float could be unloaded in turn crates. Mr. McMichael said he doubted if it could.

"Does the railroad unload fruit on the pier?" was asked by Mr. Hegworth. Mr. McMichael said the railroad places the fruit on the pier as it is to the interest of the railroad to get freight unloaded as quickly as possible so as to make room for other freight.

Question of Return Crates.

A question was asked as to return crates. Mr. McMichael said return crates could be shipped the same as any other freight. A minimum car was 12,000 lbs. at fourth class to Milton at 11 cents per hundred. A fruit grower stated that a car of crates could be shipped by freight one cent cheaper than by boat. It was possible that the association could load a car containing crates for a number of different growers and sorted on reaching their destination at this end.

Mr. Velle thought that the fact that a representative of the association was present at the loading and unloading of the fruit would tend to make more careful handling. Mr. McMichael stated that the cars would be loaded as a unit and the railroad would endeavor to unload at the suggestion of the agent that is place fruit for one consignee in one pile, etc. Trucks can drive on the pier and load the fruit.

Since there was no further discussion Mr. Velle stated it was necessary to have a committee appointed at this meeting to act in conjunction with the railroad in settling the details of the matter. Mr. Rownd made a motion that the matter be referred to the executive committee of the Hudson River Fruit Exchange. An amendment was made that two fruit growers outside the exchange be appointed to act on the committee. The amendment was seconded. The amendment was amended to read three outside members. This was seconded and accepted. The amended motion that the matter be referred to the executive committee with three outside members was carried unanimously. The outside members appointed are: L. Haviland, Highland; Thomas Powers, Middlehope and C. C. Lockwood, Marlborough. The members of the executive committee of the fruit exchange are:

W. Y. Velle, President; Edward W. Barnes, Middlehope; Charles A. Weston, F. W. Vail, W. R. Clark of Milton and J. R. Cornell of Newburgh and A. P. Wilkoff of Highland.

Mr. Velle stated that there were many details to be taken care of and be worked out at the office of the exchange with the assistance of Mr. Crowell and Mr. Anderson, Manager and assistant of the exchange.

The Ulster County Farm Bureau will assist the work and Manager Hook stated that as a representative of the Bureau he wished to state that the Bureau would do all it could in its educational capacity to place the matter before the fruit growers and help make the venture a success.

This concluded the discussion on the freight proposition.

Will Build Cold Storage Plant.

Mr. Velle stated that the Hudson River Fruit Exchange planned to erect a cold storage plant at Milton. That $15,000 had been pledged by one grower who would take storage for 15,000 barrels. Shares would be sold at $11 each and each dollar invested would entitle the investor to space for one barrel storage. The investor is not required to use the space but in case of a high demand for storage the investor could count on space for one barrel for each dollar. Later storage will cost 40 cents per barrel.

When Sleuth Met Sleuth.

New York M'n Hunting Clerk Mistaken for Jean Crozes.

An amateur sleuth and the real article staged a comedy of errors on an O. & W. passenger train Saturday afternoon near Luzon, Sullivan county. The amateur, Samuel M. Levy, of 231 West 141st street, New York, wearing a false beard and hunting for a former employee who had skipped with $250. Levy's peculiar actions in the conduct to suspect him of being none other than Jean Crozes, the Chicago poisoner, and Special Officer George H. Hadden of Middletown made the capture he hoped would make him famous. Levy was released by a justice of the peace after being ordered to lay aside the beard. As one can't be a detective without a set of false whiskers, Levy decided to give up his chase and return to New York.

EVERYBODY KNOWS TRADE-MARK.

The "Bull" is Best Known Animal in America.

The enormous growth of advertising in recent years has made the trade mark one of the most familiar features of daily life. There are many of them, but the one that the average man will recall most quickly is the rampant bull which adorns the package and the advertising of "Bull" brand smoking tobacco. He is, no doubt, the best known animal in America.

A great deal of interesting tobacco history has been made since the Durham bull first made his appearance. Years ago he stood for the most popular pipe tobacco in the world, but the vast army of "roll your own" cigarette smokers has claimed the bull for its own.

Humming Birds This Evening.

This evening "The Humming Bird" will be given in the chapel of the Roundout Presbyterian Church under the auspices of the Ushers' Club of the church. The young men have prepared a fine program and an evening of pleasure is assured those who attend. The musical end of the program has been in charge of M. F. Wygant while the accompanist will be Miss Elsa Hiltbrand. The men on the ends who will provide the fun of the evening will be Frank Finley, John Rowland, Fred Meeker and Harold Byers. The interlocutor will be Clarence Rowland and the members of the chorus are Leroy Hammond, Leslie Stevens, Kenneth Canfield, Alex Rodie, William Dohakken, Charles Beeres, Don Rodie and Ralph Bell.

The program is as follows: Opening chorus: Entire company. Solo, "Floating Down the Old Green River."—Frank Finley. Solo, "When I Leave the World Behind."—Leroy Hammond. Song, "We'll Have a Jubilee."—Fred Meeker. Song, "My Croonie Melody."—Kenneth Canfield. Specialty by the Four End Men—Solo, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling."—Clarence Rowland. In the comparatively brief time Camel Cigarettes have been on the market they have gained remarkable popularity; they are an expert blend of choice Turkish and choice domestic tobaccos—and the result is the clearest cigarette that has ever been put on the market.

You so quickly recognize the quality of the tobaccos and the expert blending in these cigarettes that you do not look for an expert coupon or premiums. Work.

London Road, Chas. Wm. Bannan, State and City Taxis.

The National Food Cookery and Kindred Trades, which this year will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the Society's Culinary Philanthropic, began its exposition in the Grand Central Palace yesterday and will continue for the balance of the week. The public opening takes place today at 4:30 p. m. The day will be devoted to competitions in culinary art, with the prominent hotel and club chefs competing. On Thursday there will be lectures on food preparation by prominent chefs. The Vacation League will visit the exposition on Thursday. Edward Panhard, chef of the McAlpin, will address the young ladies on "Cooking on a Moderate Income." Friday is Housewives' League Day. Mrs. Lois Pierce-Hughes, hostess of the McAlpin Hotel, will make an address on "The Stranger Within Our Gates." A well known chef will also speak on "How a Butcher Buys Meat." Saturday will be devoted to the awarding of prizes in the confectionery and culinary competitions.

The chefs have taken pains this year to make the affair the most comprehensive and complete in every line. They have been surprised at the amount of interest shown by those interested in food concerns and its preparation in their own homes, and they will make a special feature of supplying the information of this kind useful to the housewife, through the medium of lectures, demonstrations and motion pictures. Originally intended for the members of the culinary profession, the annual exposition of the society has now become a national institution patronized as generously by American housekeepers as by famous chefs.

Reading showed a better tone, advancing over a point from its early low level. Steel common advanced to 80 1/2 and Crucible Steel sold up to 72 1/2, a rally of over 2 points.

The market closed strong. Extensive covering of shorts and renewed accumulation of copper stocks and specialties was the feature of the last hour. Industrial Alcohol rose 3 points to above 148. FRENCH BOMB THROWER AND MORTAR.

THIS FRENCH MORTAR MAY BE AIDING IN FRENCH DEFENSE.

This recent picture of a first line French trench in the east of France, shows a trench bomb-throwing mortar. The hand grenades used at the beginning of the war have gradually given way to the bomb thrown by these small mortars which are more certain in their aim and have farther carrying power than the hand grenade.

GRATEFUL REMARKS

Manuscript Received

No Other Characters.

Mrs. Holmes and her mother, Mrs. Shadle, have moved from the Mansion House and taken up their residence in Kingston, where they will remain until they have an opportunity to dispose of their property there, when they will remove to New York city, where they expect to reside permanently. Mr. Holmes having taken a position on a United Fruit Company steamer. They desire to express their appreciation to the friends in this city for many acts of kindness and their departure will be regretted by many. Under the management of Mr. Holmes the Mansion House was conducted in a high class manner, but patronage was not sufficient to make it a paying proposition. The unpleasantness noted in The Freeman on Tuesday seems to have been greatly exaggerated, as Mrs. Shadle used no weapon and the bartender had the swollen eye he was exhibiting for several days prior to the encounter.

Borbo, the bartender who related the story that was printed in The Freeman Tuesday evening, admitted today that he was not hit with a stick and stated not only that he did not receive a black eye but that he did not have a black eye at all and that he had not been hit in the eye during the conflict, or hit with anything except a woman's fist. He told a story on Tuesday that was entirely different.

SWEENEY OF THE FOREIGN LEGION GOING BACK TO FIGHT FOR FRANCE.

New York, Feb. 29.—It is not very often that a man has the experience of having a bullet pierce his lung and be still being ready to resume his position in the battle line.

Not the least deterred by such an experience, Charles Sweeney, the young American, who for thirteen months fought in the French trenches, will return to France, anxious to hear cannon and rifle.

Sweeney was one of the first of the many Americans to join the Foreign Legion when the war began. He was the only American advanced from the ranks, and today he wears on the lapel of his coat a small red ribbon—the Legion of Honor—the highest honor bestowed by the French.

Lieutenant Sweeney received his injury in the Champagne battle on September 25. For four months he was in the hospital hovering between life and death. He is now on a three months' furlough, and expects to return to the trenches on May 1.

Lieutenant Sweeney is a graduate of West Point and has spent much of his time abroad. He is married to a Belgian girl. His wife and children are now in Paris.

Canine Rudder.

"The dog," said the scientific gentleman, "sometimes steers himself with his tail."

"Use it to guide his wandering bark," does he?" asked the irresponsible humorist.

Needs Pruning.

"It is a great mistake, Mabel, to trifle with the affections of a man who loves you by encouraging some one else."

"Well, he's a little slow, auntie. I think he needs a pacemaker."

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Edmund M. Wilbur of Saugerties has been admitted to probate in the surrogate's court. He directs the payment of debts and of a mortgage on property owned by him on Partition street, Saugerties. Household furniture, except relics and family heirlooms, are given to his daughter, Dorothy W. McMullen; the balance of the estate, including relics and family heirlooms, are given equally to his four children, Dorothy W. McMullen, Charles S. Wilbur, Frances J. Wilbur and T. Gaston Wilbur. The son, Charles S. Wilbur, is appointed executor. The will was executed July 13, 1915, and witnessed by William V. Burhans and Byron L. Davis. The value of the real estate is $100 and the personal property amounts to $1,000. Byron L. Davis appeared for the executor.

A petition for letters of administration on the estate of Burton A. Chamberlain of this city was filed by his sister, Mary E. Dwyer, of Downsville, Delaware county, and a citation was issued. The value of the estate is $250 personal property. E. E. Conlon of Downsville appeared for the petitioner.

Objections to Account Filed.

In the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of Coroner H. Lee Breithaupt, as administrator of the estate of Minnie Barte, of the town of Shandaken, objections to the account of the administrator were filed by Nathan Schwartz of New York city, as attorney for Magdalena Kohlbusch, Maria Kieffer and Katherine Schulten, next of kin of the decedent. The contestants claim that the administrator has not credited his account with interest on moneys received, or with interest on bonds and mortgages belonging to the decedent. Coroner Breithaupt's undertaking bill of $436.32 is objected to as extravagant, excessive, improper and not according to the station in life of the decedent. Objections are also filed to bills of Van Etten & Cook of this city for $250 and $150 respectively, as being extravagant and excessive, and similar objections are made to a bill of James Ryan for $100, which it is alleged is not a proper charge against the estate, and a bill of Mr. Breithaupt of $50 for expenses.

A hearing was had in the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of John A. Snyder, as executor of the estate of William E. Brink of Saugerties, and a decree passing and approving the account was granted. Byron L. Davis appeared for the executor.

FIELD OF SPORTS.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism and Other Lines of Athletics.

Denver, Colo., March 1.—Billy Miske, of St. Paul, was given the decision over Fighting Dick Gilbert after 15 rounds of boxing here last night.

Fon du Lac, Wis., March 1.—Charley Metcalf, of Milwaukee, beat Benny Palmer of Memphis in 10 rounds here last night.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 1.—Milburn Saylor was considerably improved today and his doctors believe he would recover from the attack of pneumonia he suffered following his fight in Cincinnati with Leach Cross.

New York, March 1.—Benny Kauff now wants $10,000 bonus before playing with the Giants. He demands $5,000 from the New York club and $5,000 from Harry Sinclair, former Federal League owner.

Macon, Ga., March 1.—The Yankee regulars hold the center of the diamond today. The "Rookies" have had their innings and the old timers will now stand up and bat them out. Newark, Richmond and Memphis are expected to get the pick of the players Manager Donovan will let go.

Marlin, Texas, March 1.—The Giants practice games have started. From now on it will be a "battle to the death" between the regulars and scrubs. Manager McGraw expects to have an A-1 team in shape for the battle with Dallas Saturday.

Ellenville, March 1.—Mrs. Lydig Hoyt of New York city, spent a few days last week at the Yama Farms, Napanoch.

Miss Ida Wills of Port Jervis spent the week end with Prof. and Mrs. R. W. Thompson of this village. On Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson entertained a number of young friends in honor of their guest.

Mr. and Mrs. U. E. Terwilliger, who have both been quite seriously ill are improving and Mr. Terwilliger is able to appear on the street again. Their daughter, Mrs. H. B. Raymond, who has also been critically ill for some weeks, is recovering her health.

Mrs. E. E. Count is recovering from an attack of the grip.

Cornelius Bunting was taken seriously ill with an attack of heart trouble on Sunday afternoon but at the present date is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Addison Stratton of this village, who have been spending the winter at Emporium, Pa., will turn their faces homeward during the present month and after stopping for brief visits with friends in Philadelphia and Brooklyn, will probably reach home about the first of April.

Mrs. William Dugan of Center street is one of the latest victims of the grip, being quite seriously ill at her home, under the care of Dr. Hupp.

The young people of the M. E. Church of this village are planning to give an excellent supper in the lecture room of the church on Friday evening, March 17, St. Patrick's Day. Arrangements are being made for a good, substantial hot meal which will be sure to be appreciated by all who may attend. A short, but interesting entertainment will follow the supper. Program and menu to be announced later.

Paris Millinery's New Owner.

The Paris Millinery, 316 Wall street, has changed ownership. Alton Fruchter, who successfully conducted the enterprise until a few days ago, has disposed of his interest in the store to his brother, Philip Fruchter, a prominent millinery man who conducts similar stores in Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Middletown. The Kingston millinery is a branch of eleven stores controlled by the Fruchter Brothers. Thousands of Ulster county women are familiar with the phenomenal values the Paris has been giving. The new owner proposes to surpass all former selling records, and one of his new rules will be strictly one price to everybody. A brand new force of salespeople is now employed at the Paris, Mr. Fruchter bringing to Kingston some of his best help from Newburgh and Poughkeepsie. A number of men designers, with ripe American and European experience, are also to be employed. Mr. Fruchter is a man possessing vim and business energy, and he hopes to make the Kingston branch the most successful of his chain of stores. Alton Fruchter, the former owner, has just opened a new millinery shop at Binghamton.

Another "Hoss" Case.

"A wonderful time." That is what is to be had at the dance of the Mystic Baseball Club in Pythian Hall tomorrow night, when they hold their second annual dance. The orchestra that will furnish the music has secured the latest dance hits from New York, and many young couples will trip the light fantastic to these popular airs, as the ticket demand has been very large. A pleasant evening is assured all who attend.

A Really Good Show.

"The Lilac Domino," played to a house whose enthusiasm more than compensated for its size at the Kingston Opera House Tuesday night. Every member of the big company was competent to fill the part assigned and there was not an inharmonious note in any of the musical numbers. Not a line of the comedy was of questionable propriety and the entire production was the most artistic, most musical and fun-provoking that has visited Kingston in a long time. Joseph Carey and Robert O'Connor, comedians of long experience; Yvonne Darle, Ambarito Farrar and Bradford Kirkbride, the principal soloists; and M. Beck and Miss Lillian Broderick, expert dancers, all received evidences of the audience's appreciation.

Pickering Season is Closed.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

A jingle's always a jingle
No matter what you say,
And so here's your little jingle
It's all we'll write today.

Some Welsh—isms.

"The light hitters last longest in pugilism," asserts Freddie Welsh. Righto, Freddie; the less work one does the less strain on the organs and on the nervous system.

Freddie holds up himself as one example of a light-hitter who has lasted long in the pugilistic spotlight. This will be news to many folks, and will conflict with the general opinion that Welsh quit fighting long ago—and since has been doing a Vernon Castle.

Thought of Pie Saved Life.

One of the best little "water-dogs" in the U. S. A. is Harry G. Stevens, swimming instructor in the Cleveland Y. M. C. A.

"Learned how to swim in one lesson, too," said Stevens recently. Remarkable! How did you do it?

"Was sitting on a trestle one day when I was a kid answered Stevens. 'Train came along and it was a case of being run over by the train or jumping into the river. I jumped. Never swam a stroke in my life up to then. When I came to the top I was 150 feet from shore. It was swim or drown. Remembered that mother was going to have apple pie for dinner that night. I swam to shore—and got home in time for the pie. Been swimming ever since—but not always for pie."

Harvard Loses Haughton.

The chances are that Percy Haughton won't coach the Harvard footballers in the fall. The new president of the Braves frankly admits that such a task, beginning in September, would conflict with his duties as a baseball leader, especially if the Braves were in the pennant battle.

"My first thought now is my baseball club," says Haughton. "The Harvard coaching problem is a hard one for me to decide upon now. But I'm not going to worry about it. I'll let the future take care of itself. Something unforeseen now may come out and determine my course—point out my way."

However, those Harvard folks are worrying. They fear that the man who made the Crimson a power in the football world is through with the game. And so there are organized means arising from Cambridge. But not from New Haven, Oscar; not from New Haven!

Why be a President.

Mike Gibbons has earned $100,000 in three years in the ring. He got about $170 a second for his less-than-a-minute knockout over Young Ahearn.

Tod Sloan earned nearly $1,000,000 in one year as a jockey. Christy Mathewson has amassed a fortune of $300,000 through his connection with baseball.

Jesse Willard hasn't been champion a year, yet he has earned about $250,000, working on an average of two hours per day.

While, on the other mitt, we find Woodrow Wilson laboring eight, ten, twelve, and sometimes 14 hours a day for a paltry $75,000!

Henriksen's Plight.

Five years on a big league club, ranking as a first class outfielder, and a fine clubber—but still a substitute! That's the story of Olaf Henriksen, of the Red Sox.

Back in 1910 Olaf joined the Sox, hopeful of busting into the frolic very soon as a regular. Five years of waiting—and no realization of those hopes! And it may be several years more.

The reason? Speaker, Lewis and Hooper! Aren't they reason enough why one of the best looking outfielders in the country has been doing bench duty for five years.

"The only way I'll ever get into the lineup regularly," growled Henriksen, recently, "is for one of those guys to die. There's no other hope for me."

Tis said that ever since then Bill Carrigan has been having all the food served to his "Peerless Trio" subjected to chemical examination.

A WONDERFUL TIME.

Club Will Have Tomorrow Night. "A wonderful time." That is what is to be had at the dance of the Mystic Baseball Club in Pythian Hall tomorrow night, when they hold their second annual dance.

The orchestra that will furnish the music has secured the latest dance hits from New York, and many young couples will trip the light fantastic to these popular airs, as the ticket demand has been very large. A pleasant evening is assured all who attend.

NOTABLE MEETING OF RAILROAD MEN

Transportation Director of Chamber to be Unique Affairs—Acceptances Received From Road and Water Companies Serving Kingston.

Arrangements for the Transportation Dinner to be tendered by the Chamber of Commerce next Monday night at the Hotel Stayman to representatives of every railroad and transportation line now serving Kingston are practically completed and a notable gathering of railroad men is indicated by the number of acceptances thus far received. Steamship officials are also to be in attendance together with local business men, manufacturers and city officials. The dinner will be served at 8 o'clock and an informal reception to the guests will precede it.

Among the New York Central officials who have already accepted invitations are: Division Freight Agent Alan McMichael of New York, Traveling Freight Agent Harry J. Parker of New York, Division Superintendent W. K. McCoy of Westbury, Assistant General Passenger Agent Clarence C. Howard of New York, General Agent Walter S. Randolph of Albany. This delegation will represent the main line of the New York Central Lines as well as the West Shore and Wallkill Valley railroads.

General Passenger Agent Fred B. Hibbard and his assistant, Captain White of New York, will represent the Hudson River Day Line while Herbert R. Odell of Newburgh, general manager of the Central Hudson Steamboat Line, has also accepted an invitation to be present.

Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck, representing the Sloatsburg ferry, and County Superintendent of Highways James P. Loughran, highway transportation, will also be at the speakers' table. Representatives of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad Company, the Cornell Steamboat Company and the Rhinebeck ferry will be in attendance as will H. B. Page, of Worcester, Mass., vice-president of the Kingston Consolidated Railway Company. The Ontario and Western railroad will also have representatives present.

It is the intention to have the dinner informal in character and the various speakers will be limited to five minute speeches on various transportation problems affecting Kingston. All business men of the city and members of the Chamber of Commerce are urged to attend and the cost to them will be $1 per plate.

The dinner will be served under the auspices of the Social and Transportation Committees of the Chamber and it is believed to mark the first effort of the kind to bring together shippers and railroad men on a get-together basis, which may be productive of mutual benefit.

Planting Seeds in the Sky

Mr. Manufacturer, if you were starting out to plant seeds you would not shoot them skywards hoping a few would light on the ground?

Of course not!

You would go direct to the ploughed fields and sow them carefully.

Catch the advertising thought? It's a very important one.

The newspaper carries the message direct to the ploughed field.

It reaches consumers and dealers immediately and response is rapid.

Manufacturers seeking the way to the ploughed field of profit are invited to write to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.

Body Undiscovered

After a vain search for the relative of the unknown hobo, who was shot and killed several days ago by Charles Gundagols in his saloon at Saggertown, Corner E. A. Kelly this morning buried the body in Potter's Field at the City Home. Shortly after the shooting another hobo called at Corner Kelly's undertaking parlors on West Union street and identified the dead man as one Baxter from Newark, N. J. The police of that city were communicated with by the coroner and every effort made to locate the supposed Baxter's relatives, but without success. Gundagols, who shot the hobo, is out under $5,000 bail.

Quiet and picturesque are the lines and effect of this hat, which is shown in leghorn straw with narrow brim in front and turned up abruptly in back. The color scheme is a charming combination of rose and French blue, the latter being a wide greenish ribbon which is arranged around the crown and disappears under an immense cluster of moss.

KOJI YAMADA'S CAREER

Abandoned Course at Heidelberg University in Germany.

Famous Japanese Billiard Player Lured to Game by Chance—Added Much Impetus to Gentlemen's Sport in His Country.

Forfeiting what promised to be a brilliant career as a surgeon, to become a billiard champion is the story of Koji Yamada, the Jap, who is a member of the Champion Billiard Players' league.

Yamada's father is classed among the most prosperous and progressive citizens of Japan. He was ambitious for a distinguished career for his son, and desired him to have the best advantages of education which the world could offer. With this in view, it was decided that Koji should attend the University of Heidelberg, Germany, and prepare himself for the practice of surgery.

Koji was not only willing but enthusiastic, and for a time was one of the most promising of the young students at the German university. It was merely by accident that Koji found out that he would be more successful as a billiard player than as a surgeon.

From the first he not only showed remarkable skill as a billiard player, but became so fascinated with the game that he spent more time at the Students' club billiard hall than he did at the lecture room.

When Koji returned home he failed to bring a diploma from Heidelberg, but he did bring with him the billiard championship of Germany. This fact had much to do with adding an impetus to the game in Japan, and before coming to America Koji had accomplished the easy task of annexing the championship of his own country and the somewhat more difficult task of renewing the confidence of a father in a son who had gone contrary to the wishes of the father. Now Koji is even a bigger man in Japan than he had pursued his studies and returned home with his diploma.

Since coming to this country he played a sensational game. Perhaps the best match in which he has appeared was the one early in the summer with Willie Hoppe in New York. The champion was given the hardest battle of his career, and the Jap lost in a 14-1 match by only six points. The most wonderful thing about Yamada is that his game has constantly improved, and his skill will be watched with much interest when he appears in the coming championship games.

WORLD SERIES ON THE COAST

Plan to Have Champion Football Team of West to Play With Leading Team From the East.

Officials of the tournament of roses, a festival held each year at Pasadena, Cal., plan an annual world series in football with the champion team of the West playing the champion of the East.

On New Year's day, Washington State, representing the West, played Brown university, representing the East, and the affair was a big success. Washington beat Brown, 14 to 0.

Next year the game will be offered the eastern team winning the championship. A contest of the kind planned by the Pasadena men will be the biggest thing ever attempted for settlement of football supremacy.

Baseball in the Orient.

The recent matches of the Chicago university baseball team with that of the Waseda university established a new record for attendance for sporting matches in Japan. The previous record was 12,000 established when the Chicago team on its visit five years ago met Keio university for the second time. The crowd at the Waseda ground in recent games was estimated to have exceeded 50,000, including 2,000 foreigners.

Make Signed Players Known.

In the future baseball owners will be able to announce what players have not been signed, something which could not be done in recent years because of the Federal league being in the field.

Not Quite Symmetrical. "There are invariably two sides to an argument," remarked the parlor philosopher.

"Which is all the more remarkable when you consider that there is only one end," said the mere man.—Judge.

A FAMOUS VICTORY

By F. A. MITCHEL

A young man within the German lines in Alsace knocked at the door of a cottage. A girl came to the door, and he asked her if he might be accommodated for the night which was coming on. She called to her mother in the German tongue. The young man knitted his brows. He had expected to find French inmates.

The mother came and spoke to the stranger, speaking French with a German accent. He told her that he was traveling and since there was no other house near either she must admit him or he must bivouac for the night. She consented to admit him.

The young man was about twenty-two years old and handsome as a picture. A winning smile began to play about his lips the moment he spoke to the girl, and his eyes indicated his admiration for her. He said nothing about the terrible war that was going on, nor did his hostess or her daughter. Nevertheless he assumed that they sympathized with the German cause. For France's lost province has at least as large a population of Germans as French. As to the young man, he was plainly French.

Now, though these persons did not talk about the war, it was evident that the visitor, being a Frenchman within the German lines, was living with a sword suspended over him. True, the country near about was not occupied by troops except in small bands, but any German soldier meeting a Frenchman there would require him to give an account of himself. At bedtime the stranger took a candle and went to the room that had been assigned him, locked the door after him and went to bed, but not to sleep. There was that on his mind that precluded sleep. Life was on the one hand, death on the other. He was liable to be clutched by death.

The girl about midnight, armed with a pair of pliers, went to the guest's door and, feeling with her implement for the end of the key, finally succeeded in turning it. Opening the door, she stole into the guest's room and to a chair beside the bed on which he had put his clothes. She was about to withdraw them when she felt a hand on her wrist.

"Let me go," she said in a low voice. "Certainly," said the visitor. "You have doubtless made a mistake in the room."

He released her, and she withdrew. He knew well what her object had been in trying to take his clothes. She suspected he was a spy and that in his pockets would be found papers containing information he was taking to the entente allies.

In the morning when he came down a breakfast and bade the girl good morning she did not respond, evidently suspecting herself against him. "You have started on his journey she thought, her hat and coat and gloves. "I am going with you," she said.

"You are a spy, and I intend to turn you over to the first German officer we meet."

"Oh, no, you won't?" "Why not?"

"Because they would stand me up and shoot me."

"I have considered all that." "But when it comes to seeing me shot down you will regret what you have done."

All this the Frenchman said with that same irresistible smile on his lips. "Give me the papers you are bearing and you may go free for all me."

"It is beyond your power to free me."

"Why so?" "You have made a prisoner of my heart, and my heart will not be released."

It was evident that the shot had hit. The girl was winged. But she was not ready to surrender.

"My feelings may drive me one way, but my duty is driving me another. I am capable of sacrificing my feelings to my duty."

"Then do so."

The only weapon he carried was a revolver. Taking it from his holster at his hip he tossed it to her. It fell at her feet. He folded his arms and stood looking at her with that smile which was having the same effect upon her that the eye of a serpent would have on a bird.

"Do your duty to your fatherland. The papers you wish are on my person, but you shall not have them without first killing me."

She was not yet conquered. Taking up the weapon she cocked it, advanced to within a few feet of him, put the muzzle against his breast and said:

"Give me the papers or I will sacrifice you to my duty."

"I love you," was his only response. "Once more, give me the papers."

"Once more, I love you."

They stood, the eyes of each fixed on those of the other. The battle waxed hot, but not with weapons of death. It was a fight of love against duty. Without that smile duty might have won.

Presently he saw victory for himself, defeat for her. Disregarding the weapon pressed against his breast he extended his arms, her hand sank slowly, he encircled her, drew her to him and kissed her.

When he went his way with his papers she returned to the house. Her sense of duty had given place to an all absorbing love.

GREATER THAN A KING.

The Old Mississippi River Pilot Was a Law unto Himself.

In that early day to be a pilot was to be "greater than a king." The Mississippi river pilot was a law unto himself—there was none above him. His direction of the boat was absolute; he could start or lay up when he chose; he could pass a landing regardless of business there, consulting nobody, not even the captain; he could take the boat into what seemed certain destruction, if he had that mind, and the captain was obliged to stand by, helpless and silent, for the law was with the pilot in everything.

Furthermore, the pilot was a gentleman. His work was clean and physically light. It ended the instant the boat was tied to the landing and did not begin again until it was ready to back into the stream; also for those days his salary was princely—the vice president of the United States did not receive more. As for prestige, the Mississippi pilot, perched high in his glass inclosure, fashionably dressed and commanding all below him, was the most conspicuous and showy, the most observed and envied creature in the world.

No wonder Sam Clemens, with his love of the river and his boyish fondness for honors, should aspire to that stately rank. Even at twenty-one he was still just a boy—as indeed he was till his death—and we may imagine how elated he was, starting up the great river as a real apprentice pilot who in a year or two would stand at the wheel, as his chief was now standing, a monarch with a splendid income and all the great river picked away in his head.—Albert Bigelow Paine in St. Nicholas.

HUNGRY ALL THE TIME.

In Other Ways, Too, the Earthworm is a Curious Creature.

Midnight is the favorite play hour for earthworms. To catch a glimpse of them in the darkness you'll have to dig in the earth, which is their home, or watch for them after a heavy rain, when they may be found on top of the ground. But go out any warm night with a lantern, lie close to the ground on a lawn or terrace, and you'll probably see them in abundance.

Probably you've regarded the earthworm merely as a good fish bait and have never taken the trouble to learn his habits. When he's prowling around at night he's usually enjoying a feast on decaying leaves, grasses or animal matter. Before daylight he's back in the ground, burrowing his way in search of more food. His alimentary canal extends from one tip of his body to the other, so it's little wonder he's always hungry.

He has neither ears nor eyes, yet he's sensitive to light, and he knows when night comes just as other creatures with eyes. Another interesting fact is his method of laying eggs. He grows a band around his body like a belt, in which he deposits the eggs. Then he gradually works his way through this belt until he slips it off, when it closes up and forms a capsule to protect the eggs until they are hatched.

Vegetable growers sometimes regard the earthworm as a nuisance. They should be thankful, however, that those of North America are not so large as those in South Africa, where there are earthworms four and five feet long and as thick as a man's finger.—Philadelphia North American.

How Plants Remain Upright.

If a flowerpot is laid on its side the stalk of the plant growing in it gradually curves upward until it resumes the vertical position. This is called geotropic curvature, and the question is by what means the plant is stimulated to change its direction of growth. One theory avers that movable starch grains in the plant cells fall to the lower side as the position is changed and by their pressure influence the mechanism of growth.

The Ink That Homer Used.

Ink of various hues was used by the ancient Romans, that of a purple tint being considered the exclusive gold for the execution of all royal writings, as it was distinctively the royal color. It is said that Homer's works were written in letters of gold on a roll 120 feet in length, formed of the intestines of serpents, but we are left in ignorance as to the method of preparing this ink.

Badly Balanced.

A witty Frenchman wrote at the commencement of this century a very interesting and amusing book bearing the title, "Les Agrements et les Chagrins des Marriages." In this work the first four pages are devoted to the "agrements" (joys) and the remaining 250 to the "chagrins" (sorrows).

On the beach near an English town a sign blaring this legend was said to read:
"Notice—Any person passing beyond this point will be drowned by order of the magistrate."

ICE HARVESTING NEARING ITS END

February did not "go out like a lion" on Tuesday, but nevertheless March came "in like a lamb" and the warm weather softened the ice to such an extent that the work of harvesting at Glasco was carried on only this morning, the men knocking off work this afternoon. At Steep Rocks and Kingston Point the men worked all day. Ice men say that if the warm weather continues like it was today that the ice harvest will not last much longer. It is expected that nearly a full crop of ice will be harvested in this vicinity.

The ice gorge that blocks the mouth of the creek is still too heavy to be broken and it will probably be some time before the transport will be able to resume her trips across the river. Stages are being run back and forth across the river for the convenience of passengers. Winter's express is running baggage sleighs across the ice.

SOCIETY NOTES.

George Van Etten of West Hurley, formerly of Kingston, announces the engagement of his daughter, Gertrude, to Clayton Vredenburg of Woodstock.

The marriage of Francis Herald Irvy of Rhinebeck and Miss Harriet T. Cantine, daughter of James Cantine of Montgomery street, takes place at the bride's home Wednesday, March 8, at 12 o'clock, the Rev. J. M. Cornish of the Methodist Church officiating. Mr. Irvy is the well known "bell hop" at the Maxwell House.—Saturdays Post.

The leap year dance given by the Fourth Degree Assembly of the Knights of Columbus Tuesday evening was one of the biggest affairs given by the local Knights during the past season and one of the largest crowds of the season was in attendance. Music was furnished by the famous K. of C. orchestra and dancing was enjoyed to the hearts content. Refreshments were served during the evening.

On Tuesday evening Miss Nellie Shurtner was given a linen shower at the home of Miss Alberta N. Hobertis on Van Buren street by the Philanthropic Class of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church, of which she is a member, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Many pretty and useful gifts were given. The party was broken up at a late hour with the best wishes of all present to Miss Shurtner, who is soon to marry Frank Newkirk. Those present were: Miss Theresa Garrison, Helen C. Myers, Helen Clifton, Viola Freer, Edith Garrison, Olive Shurtner, Mrs. Cecelia Bassett, Edna Waterman, Mae Collison and Bella Greene.

The Baby Week movement has certainly taken the entire country by storm, and all sorts of organizations as well as individuals are offering their services to make this week a success and to inspire an interest in the tiny tots who are to be our men and women of the future. The Kingston City Library will co-operate in the local work, by providing special and valuable literature on the baby, which may be had at the library throughout the entire week. Also the Metropolitan Life Insurance agent, has informed Mr. Day, that Dr. Lee Frankel, who is at the head of the uplift work of the Metropolitan, has authorized the library to do its share in the Baby Week movement, and they will furnish some very valuable literature, particularly prepared by experts. Splendid Production at Opera House.

Again Manager Gildersleeve scored largely in the splendid production of "The Little Domino," which was presented at the opera house last evening to a most appreciative audience. As a musical production in lighter vein it was most excellent, the songs, both solo and chorus numbers being given in a really artistic manner. The comedy throughout was really humorous and was given with a keen appreciation of its possibilities. The staging was as good as could be found in a Metropolitan theater, and the costumes were fresh and fine, the product of the modiste's art. A pleasing touch of the extravaganza delighted the audience, and taken altogether it was an evening of wholesome, clever, merry making, which afforded a real relief in these troublous times, still the war shadows loomed across the water.

Kelly-Sieckler.
On Saturday evening, February 26, at 8 o'clock, Miss Jessie Sieckler of Cedar street, Kingston, was married to Walter Kelly of New Paltz, the Rev. John H. Briody of St. Joseph's Church performed the ceremony.

Donald Ward Robbins of No. 123 West 47th street, New York city, and Miss Ora J. Sparling, of No. 27 Warren street, were united in marriage at Middletown by the Rev. Forest P. Hunter on February 27. The attendants were Mrs. Ida Turner and Milton E. Conkling.

D. A. R. Meeting.
All members of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., are reminded of the regular meeting of the chapter, to be held tomorrow, Tuesday afternoon, at three o'clock at the Chapter House. An interesting program will be presented and important business will be transacted.

"As You Like It" Dance.
The young ladies of the Kijikuit Club will give an "As You Like It" dance at St. John's parish house on Friday evening of this week. The music will be unusual in character, but very "danceable," and the club members ask for the generous patronage of their many friends. There will be an admission of 25 cents.

and the funds secured from the dance will be used for charitable work. There will be ice cream for sale during the evening.

Kijikuit Girls Give Shower.

Tuesday evening the girls of the Kijikuit Club were the guests of Miss Laura Snow, at her home on Downs street. It was a purely social evening, games and music being enjoyed. The guests were finally bidden to the dining room, where a pretty sight awaited them. The centerpiece of the dining table was a veritable winter scene, a cherry little Christmas tree, hung with red hearts, lifting its tiny branches from a bank of snow. The place cards were winter scenes and from each card there ran a tiny ribbon to the snow bank, to which was attached a little doll, with the material for a pretty dress, which was later made by each respective guest. During the evening the announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Snow, the hostess, to Frederick C. Winters of this city. Some little snow bird must have sent a forewarning of the happy event to the Kijikuit girls, for following the announcement a huge snow ball was brought in from the porch and presented to the hostess. After much unwrapping of papers, and removal of snow, a cake shower was discovered. Every possible utensil needed for a cake-making was in the surprise shower, and also an autograph recipe of a favorite cake was presented by each guest. The evening was a particularly happy one and was enjoyed thoroughly by all the girls of the Kijikuit Club.

Lowell Club.

The Lowell Club held a sort of gala day on Tuesday, at the home of Mrs. W. N. Fessenden, who announced that inasmuch as Sheridan had been omitted from the club program for the year, the entire day would be devoted to him. Mrs. Deyo opened the program by giving an interesting paper on "Sheridan," which was followed by a charming "Irish Lullaby," charmingly sung by Miss Gertrude Bruyn. For an encore, Miss Bruyn sang "Father O'Flynn." Then came the notable event of the afternoon, an excitingly clever presentation of "The Rivals." The hostess gave a pleasing prologue, descriptive of the play, the cast of characters being: Sir Anthony Absolute, Mrs. Bruyn; Mrs. Malaprop, Mrs. Lewis; Jack, son of Sir Anthony, Mrs. Witter; Lydia Langshill, Miss Balthazar. The performance called forth the heartiest of applause. The program was brought to a close with the singing of "The Harp That Once Thro' Tara's Halls," by Miss Bruyn, who gave as an encore "Barney." Then came a program of refreshments, one might almost say, though ordinarily it would have been called a supper. Green bordered chairs, harp decorated napkins and Irish flags announced the character of the repast. There was "Paraly salad," "repast," "Pigs blankets," green jelly and other appropriate and delicious viands. To return to good old America, the club will meet next week at the home of Mrs. Schoonmaker.

Evening of Russian Music.

The members of the Monday Club gave their many friends a rare treat Tuesday evening in the form of a recital of Russian music, given at the home of Mrs. G. D. B. Hasbrouck on Clinton avenue. A distinguished gathering of Kingston folk greeted Edward Bromberg, basso, of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, New York City, and Harry P. Dodge, pianist, Mrs. De La Vergne, president of the Monday Club, welcomed the guests and told of the club's study of Russia, for the past year. As the soul of a people is expressed in their music, it had been the ambition of the club to enjoy some of the music of Russia and as the crowning event of the year, they had, through the generosity of one of their members, invited their friends to join with them in listening to an evening of the music of Russia. Mrs. De La Vergne then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Higginson, who gave a brief but very interesting sketch of Russian music, which in spite of its unusual harmonies and somber colorings, still fascinates the ears of the Western people. Throughout all of the music of this country, there runs a melancholy, often a strain of hopelessness, especially in the folk songs. And the Russian people sing on all occasions, whether at work or at play, and their music comes straight from the heart. One of the great masterpieces of Russian music, and a similarly characteristic composition, is the Symphony in F major by Tchaikovsky. The thought was expressed that possibly after this terrible world war, a new music might come from the Land of the Steppes, but for the evening it would be the music of Russia past and present. Mrs. Higginson then introduced Mr. Bromberg, himself a Russian, who having received his musical education in Moscow, was an authority on Russian music in this country. No introduction was needed for Mr. Hummel or Mr. Dodge, who opened the program with "Au Convent," by Korodin. Mr. Dodge brought to this piece of program music, with its bell strokes, its service sung by treble voices, all in the minor mode, a fine interpretation and finished execution. Quite different in character was the next number played by Mr. Dodge, the "Rinde, F-sharp Major, Op. 26, No. 12, by Arensky, for it was almost brilliant. In fact Mr. Dodge gave to the presentation of this number much of the crisp brilliancy of atmosphere that pervades some of the masterpieces of Russian painting. The character of the Russian music seemed to appeal as deeply to Mr. Hummel as to Mr. Dodge, and "The Year," by Moussorgsky, played by the violinist, Mrs. Hummel accompanying at the piano, was indeed pathetic, with sometimes a sob to it, against the rainbow tint of a year of happiness. This was followed by a "Serenade," by Rachmaninoff. Here the richness of coloring was that of deep violets and wine reds, and Mr. Hummel very artistically brought out the largeness of this composer's works, as exemplified in this particular composition. Before singing the group of "Folk Songs," Mr. Bromberg, gave a very interesting description of Russian music with its predominant gloom, its profound melancholy, its tenderness and heart homesickness, and undeniably sadness. He quoted

Tolstoi as describing it to be a music with a "Yearning without end; a yearning without end." The Russian always sings, when toiling, if moved by love, by grief, by joy, and consequently the folk songs are indeed numerous. The instrument used mostly by the peasant people, is a triangular guitar with three or four strings, often made by the players themselves. The first number was the "Barge Hauler's Chant," and Mr. Bromberg, told how before the days of steam or electric transportation, the boats were hauled from place to place on the banks of the Volga, by men. This was the song they sang, and it was a folk song, which might be heard in almost any part of Russia. It was full of power and determination, and withal possessed a marked rhythm. Mr. Bromberg possessed a most pleasing voice, full and rich and warm, and he sang with that ease which is the mark of the true musician. The second song was the pleading of a maiden that she be not given by her parents into the life long slavery of a loveless marriage; "Knslave Me Not Dearest." Then came a more hopeful "Harvest Song," a song of Siberian prisoners. The last of the group was a "Russian Cradle Song," by Anton Simon, who was Mr. Bromberg's teacher of theory at the Moscow Imperial Conservatory. Commingled with the tenderness of the usual lullaby was the war-like element, which overshadowed the men of Russia from the very cradle. It was a particularly beautiful number. Two violin numbers, both by Arensky, a "Requiem," which was exquisite in its fineness and delicate grace, and a "Serenade," possessing a quality of inspiration, were beautifully played by Mr. Hummel. One of the most impressive numbers on the program was the "Rachmaninoff" Prelude, C-sharp Minor, Op. 3, No. 2, played splendidly by Mr. Dodge. Mr. Bromberg said that undoubtedly Rachmaninoff had in mind, when he wrote that prelude, the "Song of the Siberian Exile," which he was about to sing. Marked by solemn dreariness, with but a ray of hope, it was decidedly revolutionary in character, and was sung in secret, and heard in secret. Absolutely different in style was the "Song of Southern Russia," which the singer characterized as the Italy of Russia, as it was very melodious, full of fine harmony and graceful. All of the songs had been sung in the Russian tongue. Mr. Bromberg first giving an interpretation of the same. At this point, he suggested that possibly the audience would like one number sung in English, lest they forget their mother tongue. The suggestion met with hearty applause, as had every number on the program, and "For You," was charmingly given. The entire assembly then rose as Mr. Bromberg gave a most impressive rendition of the Russian National Anthem. The program was brought to a close with two numbers played artistically by Mr. Hummel; the mystic, fascinating "Oriental" by Caesar Cui, and a graceful, cheerful, charming "Song Without Words," by Tschaiowsky. With piano and violin accompaniment, and led by Mr. Bromberg, the guests rose and joined in singing "Star Spangled Banner," and the musical part of the evening came to a close. ed Tolstoi as describing it to be a music with a "Yearning without end; a yearning without end." The Russian always sings, when toiling, if moved by love, by grief, by joy, and consequently the folk songs are indeed numerous. The instrument used mostly by the peasant people, is a triangular guitar with three or four strings, often made by the players themselves. The first number was the "Barge Hauler's Chant," and Mr. Bromberg, told how before the days of steam or electric transportation, the boats were hauled from place to place on the banks of the Volga, by men. This was the song they sang, and it was a folk song, which might be heard in almost any part of Russia. It was full of power and determination, and withal possessed a marked rhythm. Mr. Bromberg possessed a most pleasing voice, full and rich and warm, and he sang with that ease which is the mark of the true musician. The second song was the pleading of a maiden that she be not given by her parents into the life long slavery of a loveless marriage; "Knslave Me Not Dearest." Then came a more hopeful "Harvest Song," a song of Siberian prisoners. JOHNNY DUNDEE.

DUNDEE MATCHED WITH BENNY LEONARD.

New York, March 1.—One of the most interesting lightweight scraps seen in this city in some time will be staged in Madison Square Garden on March 8, when Johnny Dundee meets Benny Leonard.

This will be the second time that these two legitimate lightweights have met. Their first bout on March 2, 1915, was a lively affair and since then, Leonard has improved wonderfully and has become a real contender for the lightweight crown.

Dundee's manager, Scotty Moneth, claims that Dundee was robbed of his decision over Joe Mandoy in their recent bout in New Orleans, and says that Dundee had the better of eighteen rounds.

Injured at Ice House.

Louis Altamari and his son, Michael, were both slightly injured while at work at Kingston Point on Monday. The son was at work in the storage room of the ice house when one of his fellow workers made a "misjab" with an ice hook and badly cut Michael's finger. The father was coming down the wooden steps outside the ice house when he made a misstep and in cramping for the railing he ran a sliver of wood so deeply into his hand that it had to be cut out.

Is It Merely Indigestion?

It's queer about life. We like to talk about its large issues. But most of them, when reduced to their lowest terms, are extremely simple.

An old minister's wife never used to hear her husband preach an especially accusing or intolerant sermon without wondering what she had been doing him to eat that did not agree with him. For she had learned by experience that even the color of his theology was affected by his digestion.

A prominent citizen admits that for years life looked like a dreary desert and a barren waste to him until one day a doctor exclaimed, "Why, man, do you realize that you are going about this earth without a particle of hydrochloric acid in your system?"

The full significance of this highly important fact had never before pierced the outer rim of his consciousness, but he learned then that to most humans a certain proportion of this acid is essential to digestion. "And," he went on to say, "after a few weeks I felt like going around preaching the gospel of ten drops of dilute hydrochloric acid in a glass of water after meals to all of suffering humanity." It was all so perfectly simple and so almost ridiculous to know that so much of the value of life itself could turn on so small a matter as ten little drops of acid with your food.

It's the old story of the horseshoe nail. For the want of a nail a kingdom was lost, and there are more trifling little nails missing in every day life than we imagine. And this is not by way of urging us to brood over our ills, but to examine them sufficiently to find out how simple some of them are.

Perhaps it isn't a matter of ten drops of anything that will make this world a fairer place for you. Perhaps it is a simple little pair of reading glasses that will remove your eye strain and eliminate your headaches and sweeten your disposition. Perhaps it is nothing but a foolish little corn that is pressing on a nerve and making you think you are going to be laid up for life with rheumatism or paralysis or what not. But if it is a small thing on which much of comfort and health depends, how foolish not to take the trouble to set it right.

For, after all, it takes more than sentiment to live well and happily. It takes common sense and as much decent interest in the care of the machine you live with, which is your own body, as you would bestow upon your dollar watch or your typewriter, not to mention your sewing machine or your automobile.

Materials.—Two small cucumbers pickles, three olives, one teaspoonful capers, one tablespoonful chopped pickles, one-half teaspoonful chopped chives or a few drops of onion juice and one cupful of mayonnaise.

Directions.—Chop all of the ingredients very finely, unless onion juice is used in place of the olives, in which event grate this from the whole onion on a coarse grater. Blend with the mayonnaise and set aside to become thoroughly chilled before using.

Fresh Meat Griddlecakes.

Chop bits of cold cooked fresh beef, veal, etc., and season with salt and pepper. Make a griddlecake batter and lay a spoonful of it (batter) on a heated and well buttered iron spider on the placed batter a spoonful of the chopped meat, then a spoonful of batter over the meat. When cooked sufficiently on one side turn, and when sufficiently done (well enough cooked) carry to table to be served while still hot.

Jumping an Oil Claim

By ALAN HINSDALE

It is hard to tell just how a man will act when called upon to display nerve and resource. Sometimes one who has been accustomed to a rough life, under such circumstances, will fail, while another will succeed.

Henderson had been a hardworking man all his life, most of the time on the frontier, where if any one trait is developed it is courage. When Henderson was fifty he found himself in possession of some wild land that was not worth a dollar an acre, and his title to that was imperfect for the want of a certain name on the deed.

One day somebody struck oil in the neighborhood of Henderson's property. About that time Ernest Deering, a young recent graduate of a mining school, came along on his way to investigate some property for parties in the east. He stayed overnight at Henderson's house and was about to proceed in the morning when Henderson told him of his oil land. Deering had inherited some money a year before, and Henderson offered him a half interest in his land if he would furnish a boring outfit with which to dig for oil. Deering concluded to invest in the enterprise, provided Henderson would get the missing signature to his title.

Henderson sent his daughter Margaret out to hunt for the party and secure the signature. Deering attended to the work he had come west to do and returned to Henderson's. Margaret wrote that she was on the track of the party and expected surely to succeed in perfecting the title to the land. Meanwhile Henderson had ordered the boring outfit on credit.

One day a man rode up to where the work was going on and claimed the property, producing an old deed that had been superseded by the one Henderson held. Henderson ordered him off the premises. He went away, threatening to return with a force sufficiently strong to drive away what he called the jumpers of his property.

The force engaged was Henderson, Deering and three hired men. They were absolutely without arms, and if attacked the person who proposed to dispossess them would be well provided with weapons. And there was no doubt that the attempt would be made. The ownership to the property depended on Margaret Henderson securing the missing signature. Meanwhile everything depended upon holding the well and especially the machine used in boring it.

Owing to the lack of arms Henderson saw no possibility of holding the property. He told Deering that if the jumpers came down on them in sufficient force and well armed he saw no way but for them to surrender. The hired men looked upon Henderson as able, if any one was, to assume the leadership and were not anxious to be shot down in defense of property belonging to others. Deering was a delicate little fellow, and no one thought of him in the matter of defense, though he had endorsed Henderson's notes for the machinery, and if it passed into other hands he would be the loser.

But in that delicate body were both courage and resource, and these go far to make up a natural leadership. He told Henderson that he was going to make a defense. Henderson refused to consent to a defense under the circumstances, but he would not desert the others. Deering offered the men a goodly reward if they would put themselves under his command and outlined his plan of defense to them. They agreed to stand by him.

Deering ordered them to throw up the earth in a circle surrounding the boiler that produced the power for the drilling. They made an embankment five feet high in a circle about twenty feet in diameter. This having been accomplished, what wood and iron articles as were at hand were piled on the parapet in such fashion as to form apertures here and there in lieu of loopholes. This was all the preparation that was made for defense, and when it was completed the boring recommenced.

The next day half a dozen men were seen approaching the well. Some of them had guns, while the others were armed with revolvers. Deering told Henderson and the men that since there was only one weapon for defense and he could handle that himself, they were at liberty to retreat if they liked. They chose to remain, asserting that it might be necessary for one or more of them to take his place.

When the approaching party saw the earthworks they stopped for a conference, then advanced again, and one of them called out a demand for a surrender. Deering replied that he was hard of hearing and asked them to come nearer. At this every man lowered his rifle from his shoulder or drew his revolver, and they advanced in a body. When they had reached a point to suit Deering he directed a man at the steam cock to turn on steam. Deering holding the nozzle of a hose connected with the boiler. A jet of steam struck the foremost man in the face. A panic followed. Several shots were fired. Deering could have paroled every man of them, but refrained from doing so, pointing the steam jet aside. The man he had hit was in a terrible condition, and the others took him up and carried him off.

That was the end of the claim jumping. Margaret Henderson a few days later procured the signature she had been sent for, oil was struck in large quantities, and all were made rich.

SUCCESSFUL MANAGEMENT OF TURKEYS

Splendid Flock of Turkeys.

The care which turkeys receive during the winter is a determining factor in the successful management of a flock. They cannot stand filth and if forced to live in it will soon sicken and die.

In an address some time ago on turkey raising Mr. W. J. Bell, who has had about thirty years' experience in the business, said:

"A great many people do not give there is snow on the ground and they cannot get any grit or gravel. It is necessary to have a bank of gravel that they can go to, and in the absence of that they should be supplied with commercial grit.

"Turkeys should have access to pure water at all times. If they do not get pure water they will drink out of the pools in the yard at this time of the year. A great many people tell me their turkeys are sick, and I attribute the cause chiefly to their drinking the water from pools in the yard. When the snow leaves the ground in the spring I take away the water and give them only a light feed of oats once a day, because they roam the fields and get a large amount of nutriment that is left over from the previous year. If you feed them oats and wheat right along the females will be too fat. The male does not look for feed. He is showing his beauty off all through the spring, and I feed the males oats in the morning and wheat at night in order to keep them in good condition.

"The birds should have a range every day out around the yard, and they should never be confined to the buildings. As to night treatment, the last two or three years I have left my turkeys to roost on the fences on the southeast side of the barn, where they are protected from the northwest winds. I would not say that they are not better there than in an open shed. In no case should they be compelled to roost in a henhouse."

POINTS ON FEEDING LAYERS MATING TIME FOR TURKEYS

Ration Should Be Economical, Appetizing and Nutritious and Contain Variety of Feeds. Strong, Healthy Birds Begin to Lay at Very Opening of Breeding Season—Give Good Care.

In choosing a ration for the laying hen the poultryman has several points to consider. Such a ration should be economical, appetizing and nutritious and it should contain a variety of feeds.

The ration used in feeding laying hens at the Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture and Experiment station is as follows:

GRAIN FEED.
Cracked corn	Lb.
Wheat	80
Oats	20
DRESSING.
Corn meal	20
Bran	100
Wheat middlings	100
Meat scrap	100

It is after the spring hatches that the difference between good stock and weak stock makes itself most keenly felt in turkeydom, for that is the time when the poults mortality runs highest. Where covers from undersized or otherwise deficient ancestry will dwindle steadily from week to week, until possibly only fifteen or twenty per cent of the original hatch remain, the covers hatched from vigorous breeding stock will be far better, perhaps sixty to ninety per cent of the young birds surviving the danger period under identical conditions. If the poults are ranging with the turkey hen the difference shows most markedly, for the greater intelligence, alertness, strength and solicitude of the better turkey mother also play their part.

GUARD FOWLS AGAINST ROUP

Birds Suffering From Colds and Exposure Are Quite Susceptible—Make Use of Preventives.

Roup is a germ disease thought by some to be caused by the Bacillus Avisepticus; very infectious and usually transmitted by exposure to infected birds or to coops, roosts and yards where roup birds have been.

Birds suffering from colds and exposure are more susceptible and to guard against roup, you should use tonics and preventives, which not only tend to prevent this dread disease but help to keep the birds in the pink of condition and working overtime on the egg basket.

Vermin Keep Poultrymen Busy. In six weeks a single pair of lice, under favorable conditions, can give rise to 125,000. When they multiply that fast it certainly takes an active poultryman to keep ahead of them.

Read of Uncertainty. The poultryman who fails to keep an accurate account of his transactions is traveling over the road of uncertainty that leads to failure.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Edmund M. Wilbur of Saugerties has been admitted to probate in the surrogate's court. He directs the payment of debts and of a mortgage on property owned by him on Partition street, Saugerties. Household furniture, except relics and family heirlooms, are given to his daughter, Dorothy W. McMullen; the balance of the estate, including relics and family heirlooms, are given equally to his four children, Dorothy W. McMullen, Charles S. Wilbur, Frances J. Wilbur and T. Gaston Wilbur. The son, Charles S. Wilbur, is appointed executor. The will was executed July 13, 1915, and witnessed by William V. Burhans and Byron L. Davis. The value of the real estate is $100 and the personal property amounts to $1,000. Byron L. Davis appeared for the executor.

A petition for letters of administration on the estate of Burton A. Chamberlain of this city was filed by his sister, Mary E. Dwyer, of Downsville, Delaware county, and a citation was issued. The value of the estate is $250 personal property. E. E. Conlon of Downsville appeared for the petitioner.

Objections to Account Filed.

In the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of Coroner H. Lee Brethaupt, as administrator of the estate of Minnie Barte, of the town of Shandaken, objections to the account of the administrator were filed by Nathan Schwartz of New York city, as attorney for Magdalena Kohlbusch, Maria Kiefer and Katherine Schulden, next of kin of the decedent. The contestants claim that the administrator has not credited his account with interest on moneys received, or with interest on bonds and mortgages belonging to the decedent. Coroner Brethaupt's undertaking bill of $430.42 is objected to as extravagant, excessive, improper and not according to the station in life of the decedent. Objections are also filed to bills of Van Elten & Cook of this city for $250 and $150 respectively, as being extravagant and excessive, and similar objections are made to a bill of James Ryan for $100, which it is alleged is not a proper charge against the estate, and a bill of Mr. Brethaupt of $50 for expenses.

A hearing was had in the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of John A. Snyder, as executor of the estate of William E. Brink of Saugerties, and a decree passing and approving the account was granted. Byron L. Davis appeared for the executor.

Paris Millinery's New Owner.

The Paris Millinery, 316 Wall street, has changed ownership. Alton Fruchter, who successfully conducted the enterprise until a few days ago, has disposed of his interest in the store to his brother, Philip Fruchter, a prominent millinery man who conducts similar stores in Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Middletown. The Kingston millinery is a branch of eleven stores controlled by the Fruchter Brothers. Thousands of Ulster county women are familiar with the phenomenal values the Paris has been giving. The new owner proposes to surpass all former selling records, and one of his new rules will be strictly one price to everybody. A brand new force of salespeople is now employed at the Paris, Mr. Fruchter bringing to Kingston some of his best help from Newburgh and Poughkeepsie. A number of men designers, with ripe American and European experience, are also to be employed. Mr. Fruchter is a man possessing vim and business energy, and he hopes to make the Kingston branch the most successful of his chain of stores. Alton Fruchter, the former owner, has just opened a new millinery shop at Binghamton.

Another "Hoss" Case.

Another "hoss" case, the first in some time, was brought to the attention of Recorder Lang in recorder's court this morning when Morris Basch was arraigned before him charged with cruelty to a horse. The charge was made by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on information furnished by Eugene Carl of No. 223 North street. Amos Van Elten appeared in behalf of the society. From the story told at the time the warrant was issued it is alleged that Basch bought a horse from the Hutton Company. He took the horse home and for some reason became dissatisfied with his bargain and took the horse back and wanted his money returned, which was refused. It is alleged that Basch thereupon turned the horse loose and abandoned it. This was on Monday which was a cold chilly day. The police finally were interested in the case and an officer was sent to the scene and saw to it that the horse was taken in and given shelter.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)
A jingle's always a jingle
No matter what you say,
And so here's your little jingle
It's all we'll write today.

Some Welsh—isms.

"The light hitters last longest in pugilism," asserts Freddie Welsh. Righto, Freddie; the less work one does the less strain on the organs and on the nervous system.

Freddie holds up himself as one example of a light-hitter, who has lasted long in the pugilistic spotlight. This will be news to many folks, and will conflict with the general opinion that Welsh quit fighting long ago—and since has been doing a Vernon Castle.

Thought of Pie Saved Life.

One of the best little "water-dogs" in the U. S. A. is Harry G. Stevens, swimming instructor in the Cleveland Y. M. C. A.

"Learned how to swim in one lesson, too," said Stevens recently. "Remarkable! How did you do it?"

"Was sitting on a trestle one day when I was a kid answered Stevens. "Train came along and it was a case of being run over by the train or jumping into the river. I jumped. Never swam a stroke in my life up to then. When I came to the top I was 150 feet from shore. It was either swim or drown. Remembered that mother was going to have apple pie for dinner that night. I swam to shore—and got home in time for the pie. Been swimming ever since—but not always for pie."

Harvard Loses Haughton.

The chances are that Percy Haughton won't coach the Harvard footballers in the fall. The new president of the Braves frankly admits that such a task, beginning in September, would conflict with his duties as a baseball leader, especially if the Braves were in the pennant battle.

"My first thought now is my baseball club," says Haughton. "The Harvard coaching problem is a hard one for me to decide upon now. But I'm not going to worry about it. I'll let the future take care of itself. Something unforeseen may come up and determine my course—point out my way."

However, those Harvard folks are worrying. They fear that the man who made the Crimson a power in the football world is through with the game. And so there are organized moans arising from Cambridge. But not from New Haven, Oscar; not from New Haven!

Why be a President.

Mike Gibbons has earned $100,000 in three years in the ring. He got about $170 a second for his less-than-a-minute knockout over Young Ahearn.

You soon earned nearly $1,000,000 in one year as a jockey. Christy Mathewson has amassed a fortune of $300,000 through his connection with baseball.

Jess Willard hasn't been champion a year, yet he has earned about $250,000, working on an average of two hours per day.

While, on the other mitt, we find Woodrow Wilson laboring eight, ten, twelve, and sometimes 14 hours a day for a paltry $75,000!

Henriksen's Plight.

Five years on a big league club, ranking as a first class outfielder and one of the club's best substitutes! That's the story of Olaf Henriksen, of the Red Sox.

Back in 1910 Olaf joined the Sox, hopeful of busting into the frolic very soon as a regular. Five years of waiting—and no realization of those hopes! And it may be several years more.

The reason? Speaker, Lewis and Hooper! Aren't they reason enough why one of the best looking outfielders in the country has been doing bench duty for five years.

"The only way I'll ever get into the lineup regularly," growled Henriksen, recently, "is for one of those guys to die. There's no other hope for me."

"This said that ever since then Bill Carrigan has been having all the food served to his "Peerless Trio" subjected to chemical examination.

A WONDERFUL TIME.

Club Will Have Tomorrow Night. "A wonderful time." That is what is to be had at the dance of the Mystic Baseball Club in Pythian Hall tomorrow night, when they hold their second annual dance.

The orchestra that will furnish the music has secured the latest dance hits from New York, and many young couples will trip the light fantastic to these popular airs, as the ticket demand has been very large. A pleasant evening is assured all who attend.

A Really Good Show.

"The Lilac Domino," played to a house whose enthusiasm more than compensated for its size at the Kingston Opera House Tuesday night. Every member of the big company was competent to fill the part assigned and there was not an inharmonious note in any of the musical numbers.

Not a line of the comedy was of questionable propriety and the entire production was the most artistic, most musical and fun-provoking that has visited Kingston in a long time. Joseph Carey and Robert O'Connor, comedians of long experience, Yvonne Darle, Amparito, Farrar and Bradford Kirkbride, the principal soloists, and Max Beck and Miss Lillian Broderick, expert dancers, all received evidences of the audience's appreciation.
